OUTRIGGER CANOE CLUB NAMES JOHN A. STEEL MANAGER

Will Take Charge June 1, Is Announcement of Directors of Organization

John A. Steel has been engaged as manager of the Outrigger Canoe Club, directors of the organization announced today. Mr. and Mrs. Steel will assume their duties with the club on June 1.

Employment of a manager marks a new departure for the Outrigger Club, but directors of the club expressed the belief that it will improve greatly the service to the members.

Steel, who is at present employed by the Royal Hawaiian Hotel Co., was selected by the directors after a careful canvass had been made.

He is a veteran of the World war and has considerable experience with athletic clubs on the main land. He came to the club very highly recommended.

Following construction of new service quarters which are now being planned, Mr. and Mrs. Steel will make their home on the grounds of the Outrigger Club.

Special effort will be made to organize and encourage surfriding sports following the construction of a canoe shed which will provide proper storage place for the canoes.

It is the hope of the directors of the club to make arrangements whereby the use of canoes will be greatly facilitated not only for the membership, but their friends.

Steel is expected to take charge of general management of the club's affairs.
