

Chris Moore Wins Open Ocean Swim

By Arnold Lum

The 1993 OCC Open Ocean Swim on June 5 was held during the largest south swell of the season, with waves in the five foot range occasionally closing out the Kapua Channel.

The long course, which is normally towards Castles, was re-routed due to the high surf conditions, with the swimmers heading out beyond Old Man's to the second buoy about three-quarters of a mile off shore.

First to finish was OCC's Chris Moore, with a time of :27:32.

However, the first swimmer to hit dry ground wasn't Chris—that distinction belongs to Jim Krueger of Maui, who got caught inside the surf line and body surfed onto the reef. Fortunately, Jim was none the worse for the wear, save for a few bandaids, and was able to complete the short course swim.

Thanks to everyone who helped with this year's event. If the surf is as big next year, we'll have to change the open ocean invitational swim to a body surfing contest. ☺
