Lokahi mixes it well

Captures second straight regatta

Hosting a day at the canoe races takes some time away from that week's training. But it didn't hurt sponsor Lokahi yesterday at Keehi Lagoon, as the defending Hui Wa'a champion cruised to its second victory in as many regattas.

"It knocked off one day of practice," Lokahi coach Mike Cushnie said. "But (hosting) gives us a little extra oomph to try harder."

Lokahi lived up to its name (it means unity, or togetherness) by turning in a total team effort. It scored 84 points, with proportionate contributions from men, women and children.

Manu O Ke Kai was a distant second with 39 points. Koa Kai was third overall and first in the A Division with 29.

"We did a little better than I thought we would," Cushnie said. "Especially the women. Our coach mixed 'em up and came up with some winners."

Women's coach Sandy Chong said versatility and adaptability helped her paddlers win four races yesterday. No crew was the same as last week's.

"We've got a smaller group this year, but with a lot of heart," Chong said. "If it means paddling in a different crew every week, that's OK."

Some pulled double duty and came up double winners.

Because of a shortage of paddlers, there is a new rule that allows clubs to combine freshman and sophomore paddlers to race as seniors.

Some Lokahi women won as both sophomores and seniors, while Lokahi's victorious men freshmen also won as seniors.

Butch Ukishima was one of the two-timers. He had only three races to rest, but said it wasn't a problem.

"It's a lot easier than what we do in practice," he said.

Intense practice sessions have led to a quirky tradition at Lokahi-sponsored regattas. In the last event of the day, the paddlers do their thing backwards.

"It started in practice when someone cheated on the starting line and Mike told us to do it backwards," Ukishima said. "Sometimes we do it on purpose to break monotony."

There was no boredom for rookie steersman Mike Mazzone. The converted stroker guided Lokahi's Novice A to a win.

"It's a lot easier physically, but not mentally," he said of his new role.

Outrigger tops Kailua: Outrigger Canoe Club won nine events to edge Kailua, 75-67, yesterday to capture the Oahu Hawaiian Canoe Racing Association's Kamehameha Day Regatta at Kailua Beach.

OCC won despite competing without its senior men and masters men. Both teams are in Australia competing in the Hamilton Cup Distance Race.

Hui Lanakila won A division with 27 points.

Lokahi has a new angle — curved paddles

☐ Hui Wa'a's top club continues its success with new paddles

■ Complete regatta results C-4

Jack Wyatt
Special to the Star-Bulletin

Using paddles sporting "hi-tech" curves and angles, Lokahi Canoe Club swamped all comers in yesterday's Hui Wa'a Association canoe regatta at Keehi Lagoon.

The Ala Wai Canal-based Lokahi won 15 of the regatta's 30 events, outscoring Haleiwa's Manu O Ke Kai by a whopping 84-39.

Koa Kai topped Hui Wa'a's small club (under 15 crews) "A" group with 29 points. The second race of the eight-regatta season drew 13 clubs and approximately 1,000 paddlers.

"My goal today was 70 points. My crews exceeded my expectations for the second week," Lokahi's coach Mike Cushnie said.

In last week's Hui Wa'a opener at Waimanalo, Lokahi topped runner-up Manu O Ke Kai 56-43.

Cushnie credits Lokahi's early season success to crew talent and his club's new paddles.

"With the shorter blade the paddler takes a deeper entry. It's thought to be a more efficient stroke and one more comfortable for the paddler," he said.

Angled blades and curved staffs have been around for years. But a blade that's four to five inches shorter than the norm and one sporting a double curved handle is something fairly new.

"Short squared-off blades with pronounced curves have been used on the mainland with great success," said paddle builder Dan Kahler of Lokahi.

"I simply took a proven design and adapted it to local paddling."

Three-time defending Hui Wa'a champ Lokahi continues its surge into the '90s. The club is on a 10-regatta win streak that extends through last season. Yet the Hui Wa'a power fielded just 23 crews out of a possible 30.

All Hui Wa'a clubs are short on paddlers.

"We began practice this season with a flock of kids," said coach Rona Kaaekuahiwi of Waianae's Na Keiki O Ka Mo'i, "but when the racing began and commitments were to be made we lost a bunch. The kids simply disappeared."

Kaaekuahiwi believes Hui Wa'a's high $35 paddler fee is partly to blame.

"For a low-income family with five youngsters — all looking to paddle — that represents a lot of money."

In addition to the association fee, each club charges paddler dues.

Hui Wa'a is attempting to overcome its high paddling costs by organizing regattas that are fun for all.

"My goals this season are two-fold," Hui Wa'a's president June Leialoha said, "to help strengthen clubs to make them competitive with the other (OHCRA) association in the state championship, and to foster family fellowship among all paddlers."

Cushnie is first to admit that Lokahi — the best of Hui Wa'a — would rank fourth, at best, in the more powerful OHCRA.

"The highest we placed in team scoring at the state champs was sixth or seventh," the coach said, "but individually our crews have won a lot of medals, including several gold."

Koa Kai's Jennifer Armstrong, a former OHCRA paddler, believes Hui Wa'a's greatest asset is its friendship.

"The intensity is present with Koa Kai but so is its support. We're very close," she said.

■ Outrigger tops Kailua: Outrigger Canoe Club held off a late charge from host Kailua Canoe Club to win its second Oahu Hawaiian Canoe Racing Association regatta, 75-67, yesterday at Kailua Beach.

Outrigger led throughout the King Kamehameha Regatta, but Kailua won five of the final 10 events of the day.

In the A division for clubs entered in 15 and fewer events, Hui Lanakila, which shared the trophy with Lanikai last week, won it outright yesterday with 27 points. Waikiki Surf Club was second with 16 points.
