OCC Second in Healani Regatta

Outrigger Canoe Club paddlers won seven events in the Healani Regatta, June 4 at Keehi Lagoon, opening day of the Oahu Hawaiian Canoe Racing Association regatta season.

OCC finished second in the AA division with 68 points, just behind Kailua with 78 points. Hui Nalu was third with 56 and Healani was fourth with 53.

With nine upper division men and the masters men in Australia for competition, the ranks were a little thin. However, other paddlers filled in and Outrigger also got five seconds and seven thirds in the 30 events. 🍹

Keoni Kino and son, Austin, watch the action at Keehi Lagoon.

The winning Girl's 14's crew was Eliza Leineweber, Eliza Wilcox, Manutea Starr, Moni Lee, Brooke Cassiday, Corin Gentry and Coach Dede Sheffield.

The Boy's 16s were winners—Matt Corboy, J. P. Canlis, Paul Larsen, Sage Spalding, front; Danny Goldcamp, Matt Buckman, coach; and Adam Cobeen.

Paddling the Girl's 18s to victory were Megan Clarkin, Jackie Muller, Dione Wilbur, Nicki Lee, Malia Kamisugi and Missy Mowat.

Alex Anderson recently celebrated his 95th birthday. Our best wishes. "Spectrum Hawaii," an ETV feature, recently aired a bio of Alex and his wife Peggy and their family, including spots on his career as a pilot in World War I, the family man, businessman and composer of such favorites as "Lovely Hula Hands," "Mele Kalikimaka" and the OCC song. . .

On May 5, Frank Walton hosted fellow members of the famous Black Sheep Squadron at the OCC.

The Rev. Abraham Akaka set the tone in his inimitable way at Club Day. . .

Special thanks to Jean Taylor, wife of former president Yabo Taylor, who gathered numerous pictures and clippings relating to the OCC from her personal archives. Not only did Jean share the material, but she took the time to identify the pictures, resorting to calling mutual friends to fill in where details were missing. Her research is invaluable and very much appreciated. Thanks Jean.

Thanks to the diligence of Genie McMahon, the historical files now have a picture of Duke Kahanamoku and actor Ronald Coleman, as well as a synopsis of the film script of the silent film, "The Rescue" in which they appeared together.

Two OCC volleyball players are playing on national teams this summer. Trevor Schirman, who just finished his junior year at UCLA, will be on the National B team. He was selected to the first team WIVA for his outstanding play on the national championship Bruin team. He was third in the nation and led the Western Intercollegiate Volleyball Association in blocking this past season with a 1.87 average per game. He was second in the NCAA in hitting at .444 and led the WIVA in this category. Doug Rigg has been a member of the national A team since February.

Mark Campbell home from college for the summer and teaching weightlifting and gymnastics at Punahou Summer Sports School. He'll be attending Idaho State University in the fall on a football scholarship. He earned all-Western States Football League honors as a linebacker last year at Utah Valley Community College.

Enjoying pupus at the Club Day reception was Aileen Soule, one of OCC's Olympic Gold Medal winners, now 83 and still swimming competitively.

Betsy Somerville was nominated for the Volvo national women's intercollegiate tennis team of the month. She and her partner were the only team this season to beat the nation's number one ranked women's college doubles team. She plays for the University of Arizona.

Stefanie Smart has been invited back to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in Pasadena, California for a second year of study.

Harry Sheffield had another great trip to the Indy 500. As captain of the nuclear submarine USS Indianapolis, he was invited to the race by Al Unser Sr. and racetrack CEO Mary George. He and 15 of his crew visited schools and hospitals, passing out the ship's baseball caps and T-shirts, and gifted winner Emerson Fittipaldi with a shadow box trophy from the crew.

Van and Vicki Williams visited from California long enough to see daughter Nina Fox and attend the roundup at the Waiialua Ranch. . . Levi Stanley is recovering from a back operation on June 6 in San Francisco. . .

Bob Raab is the chairman of the fund-raising committee of the Smoke-Free Class of 2000 effort, sponsored by the American Lung Association, the American Cancer Society and the American Heart Association. Assisting with the 12-year project to keep children from ever starting to smoke are Ernie Albrecht, Ben Cassidy, Marguerite Gilpen, Rab Guild, Tooty Hager and Jim MacArthur.

After traveling with the Masters crew to Hamilton Island, Australia, Brant Ackerman, Bill Danford and Johnny Mounts continued on to Brisbane and Sydney for a little R&R and sightseeing.

Patrick Ayau and Elizabeth Justiniano will be married on July 1 at Calvary by the Sea Church with the reception at the Elks Club. . .

Chip and Toni Goldeen were in Honolulu for a week to photograph their swimwear catalog. The second week, Toni and daughter Whitney enjoyed a vacation, while Chip went back to California. . .

Michael A. Spector, M.D. will be in residency in New York for four years of anesthesiology at New York Hospital, Cornell University.

Mariechen Wehselau Jackson was one of six swimming pioneers inducted into the Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. on May 12. She had her handprints and footprints cast in cement and has a photo display near that of Duke Kahanamoku and Johnny Weissmuller.

Marie Felton, our gracious dining room hostess, is now the proud mother of Lily Ann, born May 19 and weighing in at 9 pounds 8 ounces.

OCC Adventurer's Club: Kilimanjaro

By Tim Guard

"Kilimanjaro is a snow covered mountain 19,340 feet high, and is said to be the highest mountain in Africa. Its western summit is called by the Maasai 'Ngaja Ngai', the House of God. Close to the western summit there is the dried and frozen carcass of a leopard. No one has explained what the leopard was seeking at that altitude."

Ernest Hemmingway

My first encounter with Ernest Hemingway's epic short story, "The Snows of Kilimanjaro," was in a 10th grade English class and from that day forward, I lived with the dream of climbing the so-called "white roof of Africa."

Time and circumstances, however, seemed to constantly interfere with my plans to simply visit Africa, much less deal with a myriad of details preparatory to climbing a 19,000-foot mountain half way around the world from Hawaii.

Fortunate for me, I ran into two old friends last summer in Los Angeles who had dreamed the same dream as me, and we gave further thought to the notion of making the climb. We all agreed that it should be done within the year. But how?

That question was answered by a wonderful organization in California called Mountain Travel. They're specialists in pioneering new trips to exotic locations all over the world—backpacking, rafting and natural history safaris.

Mountain Travel provides the guides, porters, food and tents. You bring the clothes you need, a sound pair of hiking boots and the will and determination to reach your destination.

After a long but comfortable flight from Los Angeles, our climbing group arrived on a warm, clear day in Nairobi. We're soon on our way to the hotel after a prefatory inspection by the Kenya customs and immigration people.

The hotel serves as our base camp as we gather the remaining members of our group in preparation for three and a half weeks "in the bush and on the mountain."

Mount Kenya, with a summit at 17,058-feet serves as our acclimatizing hike, followed by a wonderful five-day visit to the spectacular Amboseli game preserve. Lions, elephants, cape buffalos, rhinos are but a few of the animals that live there protected from poachers, while elsewhere in Eastern Africa the population of these magnificent beasts is being depleted at a horrendous and alarming rate.

The rugged, snowy slopes of Mount Kenya prepare our intrepid group of 15 climbers well for the trek to Kilimanjaro's summit. Starting at the Chigoria gateway to this majestic national park, we ascend in three days to Point Lenana, a peak approximately 700-feet below the true summit of Kenya.

High up on the mountain we have our first encounter with climbers suffering from various symptoms of High Altitude Mountain Sickness, including headaches of migraine intensity, nausea and the potentially fatal effects of pulmonary and cerebral edema.

The lessons learned on this initial climb are: stage your progress up the mountain very carefully, hydrate yourself constantly and proceed at a pace which is well within your physical capabilities.

Our Kenyan guides encouraged us to walk "pole-pole"—slowly but steadily.

Of the 15 climbers who started for the summit of Kenya, 12 made it to the top of Point Lenana, not a bad beginning.

Once off the mountain and on our way to the town of Moshi, Tanzania, our jumping off point for the trek up "Kili", the excitement and anticipation of the group grew palpably. At the trailhead of the Machame route up the mountain, our energy could hardly be contained.

What a sight it is, that first morning. Fifteen climbers, one group leader, eight experienced Chagga tribesman as our guides, and 41 porters heading out in a sinuous column—the climbers all dressed in their stylish, colorful "Patagonia" outfits, the guides and porters attired in a varied collection of hand-me-down clothing, a few wearing battered Nike running shoes, some wearing little more than go-aheads.

Scores of people from the small surrounding villages gather to stare in fascination at the "Bwanas" as they disembark from the bus, hoist their backpacks, and begin their trek up the flanks of the mountain.

The Machame Route to Kilimanjaro's summit is described as "a remote trail skirting the southern glaciers of the mountain. It begins in the rain forest at 6,400-feet (where we) enjoy fabulous alpine scenery as we make an altitude gain of nearly 13,000-feet on the way to the 'snows of Kilimanjaro'—Uhuru Peak at 19,340-feet."

The first day's climb is rather strenuous. We climb a winding muddy trail through lush tropical forest for about five hours, the last two of which are in chill, driving rain. Our campsite is located in a grassy meadow at the 10,500-foot elevation. Cold and fatigued, we pitch our tents, warm ourselves with steaming hot tea, and fall into exhausted sleep soon after dinner.

My personal porter, Godliving Sadiki Mmbando, wakes me at the crack of dawn the next morning with a cup of tea in hand. "Wake up, Bwana Tim, it's time to hit the trail," he says, gently but emphatically. There's no laying around and being lazy with this group, or you'll be left behind for sure.

After a spartan breakfast of porridge, bread and peanut butter and tea, we're on our way from the Machame Uniport to the Shira Plateau, a distance of about 12 miles and an elevation gain of 2,500-feet. At the beginning, the route requires a good deal of rock scrambling, but after two hours, we find ourselves on a clearly marked trail which leads us towards the Shira Uniport through terrain not unlike the Scottish moorlands.

We arrive at our campsite by mid-afternoon, and as we round the final bend in the trail, the clouds high on "Kili's" flanks part to reveal a clear view of the summit—a 3,000-foot cap of snow, ice and glaciers. The view is stunning, but more than a bit intimidating.

There's still another 6,000-feet to go and I begin to wonder how I'll cope with the effects of cold and altitude as we climb still higher on the mountain. "Better not to think about it, I say to myself, just take it a step at a time."

Days three and four take us to successively higher elevations; our bivouacs those evenings are at 14,000-feet and 15,000-feet. Our final encampment is over 4,000-feet below the summit. In the distance, the jagged escarpments of Mount Myenzi, sister peak of Kibo and a part of the Kilimanjaro massif, lie hidden in thick clouds, eerily illuminated by a rising full moon.

We take an early meal that evening, then crawl into our sleeping bags in hopes of getting three or four hours sleep before our 12:30 a.m. wake-up call. Few of us sleep, however, for we are all apprehensive of the challenge that looms before us.

Clive Ward, an expatriate "Brit" and our veteran guide, wakes us as planned, and we dress in our warmest clothing and pack our rucksacks hastily. The camp kitchen has prepared a meal with the remnants of our provisions; it isn't much, but our appetites have been dulled by the harsh wind and the altitude.

At the stroke of 1 a.m., we're on our way—15 climbers, our group leader and the eight guides. The porters have been dismissed and they'll head back down the mountain at first light.

Climbers included Bob Hodges, John Mosely, Tim Guard and guide Clive Ward.

"Onwards! The mountain must come to an end soon! At last, at two o'clock we approached the highest rim. A further 50 paces of strenuous clambering in a state of extreme anticipation, and then the earth opened up there before us, revealing the secret of Kibo. Taking in the whole upper part of (the summit) there opened up a giant crater with steeply precipitous sides . . ."

*Hans Meyer
First European to Climb Mount Kilimanjaro*

Hans Meyer's thoughts, penned in 1889, mirror my feelings exactly. For hours, in single file under an unusually pale moon, we edge our way up the steep flanks of the mountain. The terrain is a combination of rocks, scree and ice and in the darkness, we're all having problems maintaining our footing.

The altitude is also beginning to take its toll. For some of us, the only problem is a shortage of breath, but for others the effects are much more severe: headaches, nausea and disorientation. We pause frequently to give the slower climbers a chance to catch up.

Everyone is breathing deeply, trying their best to fill oxygen-starved lungs.

Doubts about my ability to make it to the top, which I had earlier dismissed, now return and I feel my confidence ebbing away.

By 5 a.m. the moon has disappeared. We're climbing in complete darkness with only tiny penlights to illuminate the rock cairns which the guides use to pick

JUNIOR 'RIGGERS

By Keala Kilcoyne

Congratulations to Brad Stewart who was named the Honolulu Advertiser's 1989 Athlete of the Year. Brad was also the Most Valuable Athlete at University High and recipient of a four-year $1,000 a year scholarship.

Kelsey Muller and Brooke Cassidy are going to Russia and Paris this summer. Brooke is also going to Africa. . .

We saw lots of Jr. 'Riggers dancing in the Punahou Holoku Pageant, including Heather Avery, Sean Shodahl, Malia Emerson, Malia Buck, Mekia Ostrem, Tia Brownrigg, Siana Austin, Kim Allin, Koa Ostrem, and Eliza Leineweber. Keone Kali played ukulele in the band.

Congratulations to Missy Mowat who was named Athlete of the Year for Kaiser High School. Missy runs cross country and track and swims. She was honored at the Honolulu Advertiser All-Star Sports Award Banquet. . .

Our boy's 12-14 volleyball team went to Los Angeles to compete in the Reebok Tournament, June 22-26. Making the trip were J. J. Riley, John Wright, Ryan Avery, Brian Kilcoyne, Trevor Cabell, Kimo Greenwell, Jesse Hunter, Richard Riecker, Ivan Gale, Kaione Crabb and Jason Ayson. We'll tell you the results next month.

Siana and Jimmy Austin will be going to Alaska next month. . .

our route. It has become a great deal colder as well.

Clive reckons that with the wind chill factor, the temperature is probably hovering around -10 degrees. I feel dispirited. There's no turning back, but our objective is nowhere in sight.

Finally, we see the first rays of sunlight far off on the horizon—vivid hues of orange and red which signal the arrival of dawn. Just the mere thought of sunshine is enough to dissipate the cold, not to mention my bleak mood.

The landscape is no longer dark and foreboding; the rim of the crater shortly comes into view less than 500-feet above. "It's a piece of cake from here on," I say to myself, "kind of like the last hour of the Molokai race."

Just as the sun clears the horizon, I step on to the rim of Kilimanjaro at Stella Point. Gilman's Point is to our right, the trail to the true summit rises gently to the left.

One by one, my fellow climbers clamber up the final pitch to the rim, and like me, each is overwhelmed by the beauty and enormity of Kilimanjaro. Tears run freely down our faces as a realization that the dream is at last a reality sinks in.

I look around to see if everyone has made it onto the rim. Clive is assisting the last of our group, then at last all 15 climbers are standing on the rim, hugging and embracing one another.

To not continue up the final 700-feet to the true summit would be the same as running a marathon, only to quit at the 25 1/2 mile mark. Despite our fatigue, we shuffle forward, driven on by the desire to stand on the summit of "The White Roof of Africa."

In slightly less than 45 minutes we're on Uhuru Peak, and beneath us the true majesty of Kilimanjaro can be seen in all directions. The summit is a crown of solid snow and ice; thick glaciers, exuding the most brilliant hues of blue I've ever seen, run off in several directions. The giant crater of Kibo, which measures over one-mile in diameter, lies dormant in the distance.

Far to the north, the Amboseli plains are visible three miles below where we're presently standing. The view, the feeling, and the sensations of having finally reached this long-sought goal overwhelm me for a few moments.

Realizing that I'd need some evidence of my accomplishment for my friends back in Hawaii, I threw off my heavy parka, wool sweater and thermal gloves to reveal my last layer of clothing—an OCC T-shirt. While my climbing companion fumbles with his camera, I stand there freezing in the -25 degrees temperature. Never, ever in my life, have I felt so cold. Bob takes the required photographs and I hastily don my sweater and parka, though for two hours afterward, I will pay the price for five minutes exposure to the cutting wind.

Our descent off of Kilimanjaro is anticlimatic, it feels more like a retreat for some reason. It was so much effort to gain the summit and now we seem to be racing to reach lower altitudes.

In the end, however, my mission was to reach the very top of Kilimanjaro, and once having done that, the descent down the mountain had relatively little meaning.

No, I didn't find the frozen carcass of the leopard which according to legend lies somewhat near the western summit. The secret of what the leopard was seeking at that altitude is also still unexplained to me. But the meaning of what Maasai call "Ngaja Ngai"—the House of God—is now very clear to me. It will be to you, too, when you go there. ☺

OCC Invitational Swim

Lifeguard Chris Moore won the 2-mile Outrigger Invitational Swim on May 20 with a time of 40 minutes and 39 seconds. The race started at Sans Souci Beach, went out the channel, towards Waikiki and back, finishing at the Club beach.

Rick Heltzel was right on Moore's heels, finishing in :40:47.

The first Outrigger member to finish was Mike Miller in :45:30.

Swimmers over the age of 50 may opt to swim a 1-mile course instead of 2-miles.

Participants included OCC members, Waikiki Swim Club and the Hawaii Masters Swim Club. A total of 64 swimmers competed. 🏊

Chalupsky Wins Molokai Race Again

By Nalani Blaisdell

Pre-Dawn: Kaluakoi Hotel and Resort, West end, Molokai, May 21.

The stories begin with quiet chatter on the terrace overlooking the channel. Marshall Rosa reigned at our table, saying it could be a day for records, if someone would turn on a wind producing fan.

The time to beat was 3 hours, 27 minutes and 31 seconds. The course:

the Kaiwi Channel from Kaluakoi Beach to Oahu's Koko Marina, 32 miles.

Rosa pointed out indicators of a minimal south swell. With diagrams and napkin sketches, he explained a southerly route would be anathema.

Slowly the tables emptied and Lesline Conner.

By mid-morning, the packs had settled, with Oscar in an apparent lead. Never underestimate the power of sibling rivalry, with Herman Chalupsky taking the lead. Observers recalled that it was the first race in which Oscar had to fight to keep his spot.

Each year this Kayak Challenge is an event for those with interest and fishing boats. This time a bevy of outrigger vessels were out at Portlock to witness the finish and others were involved as mandatory escorts for kayakers.

The finish was close, Oscar and Herman pulled a one-two, finishing in 3:39:47 and 3:40:16. The senior Chalupsky was 19 minutes off his predicted time, but later explained the wind had died, mid-channel.

Marshall Rosa was Outrigger's first finisher, fourth overall, in 3:51:16, with Kala Judd and Geoff Graf finishing eighth and ninth.

Kala and Geoff took separate courses which converged at the finish. Some say one was drafting the other till 100 yards off the finish.

Lesline Conner won the women's division for the third time with a personal best of 4:48:39.

Records may not have fallen, but at parties and out on the Hau Terrace, anecdotes of the race remain. Just ask about the hammerhead shark (how big was it?), about the giant marlin fight and about who bet whom for what.

In the end, it's not just records that count. It's also raconteurs. ☺

"Got an estimated time for arrival, Oscar?" (Chalupsky, the record-holder from South Africa.)

"Three hours, 20 minutes."

The race began at 9. It was a fast and furious start, with the fastest man in the world for 1,000-meters sprinting to the lead. Olympic Gold medalist Greg Barton was at the apex of a 50-plus kayak group.

Soon, two general courses had been established. Up north were Chris Kincaid, Kala Judd and Mark Buck. Heading more directly for Makapuu and Koko Head were Marshall Rosa

Aussie Wins Ocean Ironman

Trevor Hendy, a professional triathlete from Australia, won the Coppertone Ocean Ironman Hawaiian Championships, May 13 at Sans Souci Beach. The event was co-sponsored by OCC and produced by Gentry Sports.

The event included a 2K paddleboard race, .6K beach run, .8K swim, .6K beach run and a 2.6K surfski race.

The race was extremely close with less than a minute separating the first, second and third finishers. Hendy's time was 59 minutes, 19 seconds. Behind him were Hawaii lifeguard Chris Moore in 1:00:07 and Los Angeles triathlete Craig Hummer, 1:00:09.

Hendy was first at the end of the paddleboard, followed by Moore. At the end of the swim, they had switched places, with the Aussie pulling ahead in the surfski.

The biggest surprises of the day came from Jr. 'Riggers Wyatt Jones and Malia Kamisugi. Wyatt was the first amateur to finish, in sixth place overall, in 1:08:56 and Malia was 12th overall, winning the women's competition in 1:17:07.

The pro team of Moore, Hummer and Hendy won the relay in 1:00:10. Top Junior team was Brad Yim, Todd Duplanty and Nalu Kukea. Winning the Masters Division were Fred Fong, Roger Cundall and Mark Buck. Top women finishers were Missy Mowat, Nani Blake and Malia Kamisugi.

Malia Kamisugi won the women's competition and Wyatt Jones was top amateur.

The top Junior relay team was Todd Duplanty, Nalu Kukea and Brad Yim.

Ian Moore races to swimmer Rick Heltzel in relay.

Marc Haine sprints to his kayak.

Roger Cundall and Fred Fong.

Easton Manson takes the tag from Hunter Eggers.

Kala Judd paddled his team to third place overall.

Ian Emberson drags his kayak to the water.

Missy Mowat tags her teammate Nani Blake.

Backward Glances

By Cobey Black, Historical Committee

70 Years Ago

1919—Former star oarsman of the Myrtle Club and best all-round athlete of OCC, George David Center, was appointed Club Captain with supervision over all sports. He also coached paddlers, swimmers, surfers and volleyball teams, earning the affectionate nickname of "Dad".

50 Years Ago

1939—Still suffering from the recession, the Outrigger Canoe Club was flat broke and on the verge of losing its Clubhouse. But with the promise of a new site in the center of Waikiki Beach, its 250 members were determined to steer their club to safe haven by floating a bond issue.

40 Years Ago

1949—Albert "Toots" Minvielle, top steersman and canoe designer, proposed at an OCC meeting that the longest canoe race in the world be held from Molokai to Waikiki. The idea won enthusiastic support from Island surf club leaders: Neal Ifversen, Fat Guard, Tommy Kaulukukui, Dad Center, Gay Harris, Dope Yap, Wally Froiseth, Sally Hale, Bill Morris, Ernest Stenberg, Louis Ambrams, Bob Fischer, John Hollinger, Herbert Oliviera, John Kaupiko and Bill King.

30 Years Ago

1959—New Club secretary Fred Rohlfing read his minutes: "At this meeting Club officers Anderson, Russell, Rohlfing and Beardmore were elected. Other board members present: Danford, Godbold, Rainalter, Cleveland, Steere, Weaver and outgoing president Smith."

President Anderson stressed need for future athletic policy and Dick Cleveland requested six new baseballs for "our fighting mountain-ball team".

20 Years Ago

New Life Member: Ken Pratt

By Mim Pratt

As Ken's spouse, I can't think of a single thing that has pleased Ken more than receiving Life membership in the Outrigger Canoe Club.

Prior to the Annual Meeting on February 20, 1989, I believe one of the things that pleased him most was a surprise 50th birthday party at the old Club when the kids, Jim and Ruthy, and I actually surprised him with a beautiful canoe steering paddle made by George Downing. How he loved using that paddle to take friends out in the number two canoe. Even Duke Kahanamoku enjoyed using that paddle from time to time.

Ever since I can remember, canoeing, swimming and volleyball have been Ken's number one topic of conversation.

I arrived in the Islands in 1937 and had my first canoe ride soon after and Ken taught me to "pull a good paddle."

Ken was born in Honoulu, the eighth child of Dr. and Mrs. J. S. B. Pratt. He learned to swim early when one of his older brothers tossed him into a pool at their summer home in Kaneohe.

He joined the Outrigger Canoe Club in 1924 or 1925 and used to enter swimming races with Punahou classmate Buster Crabbe who taught him how to steer canoes. A couple of years later found Buster busily training for the national swimming competition held at the Natatorium where two of his competitors were Duke and Johnny Weismuller.

Ken was involved in arrangements for the Surfboard Polo events in front of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel. I remember seeing my first surfboard polo game played on surfboards at the Natatorium. What excitement!

Ken spent a lot of time at the Club and often helped with the sanding and varnishing of the canoes in the late 20s and early 30s.

Ken and I were married in 1938 and Ken had to drop out of the Club for financial reasons. Then World War II came along and his banking hours became longer with Business Men's Training Corps after hours. But we still had family membership in the Uluniu Swimming Club next to the Outrigger Canoe Club. (Uluniu was sandwiched in between the Royal Hawaiian and the OCC). So during the war years, we found our way through the maze of barbed wire that was strung along the beach—and still had our canoe rides and surfing when time permitted.

In 1948, Ken rejoined the OCC and was very active in Club activities, especially during the time Wilford Godbold was president. Ken was chairman of the Entertainment Committee one year and chairman of the Canoe Committee for two years. He was also on the Nominating Committee. Lefty Godbold was a close friend and an usher at our wedding, so Ken enjoyed working with him.

One year Ken was asked to sell or donate to other clubs some of the excess koa canoes that the Club had at that time. He recalls that Harry Field, was given at least one for a canoe club he was in the process of organizing on the island of Maui. Some of the canoes ended up as decorations in hotel bars.

In the late 50s or early 60s, Ken was chairman of the Canoe Surfing Committee when the coral heads out from the Halekulani Hotel at Popular Surf were proving quite dangerous not only to the canoes, but to board surfers.

Ken wrote to the Navy divers to see if they would cut a portion of the various coral heads to make surfing safer. He was advised by the commanding officer that this would be competing with local contractors—so they could not do it.

Ken wrote to a Legislator explaining the need, and money was appropriated to do the job—and the necessary dynamiting was done, thus making surfing a lot safer.

During the 60s, Ken was involved with some committee work, nominating, etc. but was otherwise too involved as President of Pearl Harbor Rotary Club and president of the Navy League, to be able to help as much. But every weekend was spent at the OCC entertaining Navy and Marine officers, teaching them to ride surfboards and taking them for thrilling canoe rides. Some of the officers are still talking about those times.

About 1977, Ken began working with the Historical Committee at the Club. During the years that Alex Castro was chairman of this committee, Ken was chairman of the Oral History Subcommittee and he took over as chairman of the Historical Committee when Alex was ill and could not attend.

The first Oral History for the Outrigger was done by Bill Kea in the 60s. The first one Ken did was that of Ronald Higgins (RAdm) and Francis Bowers in 1978. Ken found this a very interesting thing to do, and friends tell me he is very good at it.

So he did oral histories of Albert E. Minvielle, Atherton Gilman, William J. Mullahey, R. Alexander Anderson, Thomas W. G. Singlehurst, Duke Kahanamoku (as told by Sargent Kahanamoku), George Brangier, Ernest H. Thomas and R. G. Burkland.

What a wonderful legacy they all leave to the Club—unusual early history that could otherwise be forgotten.

A big mahalo from Ken and me. ☺

Tennis Enjoys Revival

By Suzy Hemmings

Women's tennis at the Outrigger has had a facelift and a surge of new players getting back into the swing of things again. With babies born, careers put to the side, OCC has emerged with a whole new fleet of great players.

At the helm of this is Liz Perry-Dugan, who is committed to getting everyone's racket back, and winning their matches. They started with the HTL Novice league, placing third; and now have branched out into two teams to play in the Volvo League.

Teammates include Tanya Watumull, Ann Martin, Debbie Atkinson, Nina Fox, Marquita Dennison, Marcie Nowack, Robin Markle, Pam Rigg, Cindy Cote, Mary Shoji, Paula Jenkins, Conne Sutherland and Suzy Hemmings.

New to join the ranks are Debo Zabriskie, Jo Starr, Laura Van Lier Ribbink, Tiare Finney, Tracy Smith, Carolyn Skinner, Susu Rolles and Michele St. John.

OCC Runners in Hawaiian Style Race

By Paddy Dunn

It was a cool and misty Manoa morning. The perfect setting for the 5th annual Hawaiian Style 8K on May 14. There was a large Outrigger contingent of 18 who turned out for this event.

Course records were broken in both the men's and women's overall divisions and Outrigger's Diane Stowell won the 55-59 division in record time of :37:54. Diane, who won five gold medals and set two national records in the National Swim Championships in Florida a few days before, was still adjusting to the time change, which obviously didn't deter her.

Another outstanding performance was turned in by Tanya Watumull, who won the 25-29 division and was 10th overall with a time of :32:19. Kristie Doktor was second in the 15-19 division in :38:50. Russell Allen was second in the 55-59 division in :32:55.

Most of the participants ended up at the Club for the Mother's Day buffet after the race.

The race was founded by and is sponsored by member Dale Hope.

Water Polo Team Finishes Second

Outrigger's water polo team finished second at the Team Maui Invitational Tournament, May 19 and 20. Four teams from Maui and Oahu played in round-robin style competition at the Maui War Memorial Pool.

OCC's strong showing was bolstered by the experience of players Grady Howe, Bruce Black and Todd Duplanty. Coach John Nielsen led the team as well as shared goal duties with Dean Stowell. Bruce Black was the leading scorer of the tournament with 17 goals.

Playing with a crew of 10 members, a fatigued OCC lost to the UH Rainbows club in the final round. A fun weekend was had by all.

Look for us soon as we host the OCC Invitational in front of the Club on July 8. The Water Polo Club is open to all OCC members. Practices are Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m. at the UH pool. Contact John Nielsen for details.

Playing in the Maui tourney were Norma Santiago, Karl Heyer IV, Tony Price, Dean Stowell, Todd Payes, John Nielsen, Colleen Kelley, Bruce Black, Grady Howe. Not pictured: Todd Duplanty.

Winged "O": Henry Ayau

By Martin Zais

Winged "O" Awarded in 1983

In 1942, in Hoolehua, Molokai, to Henry Keawe Ayau Sr. and Mabel Duvauchelle Ayau, was born a son whom they named Henry Keawe Ayau Jr., part Chinese, part French, part native Hawaiian and all smiles.

Henry grew up in the homestead lands of Hoolehua and attended Molokai Elementary School. He moved to Honolulu and graduated from Punahou School and then went to Corvallis, Oregon where he attended Oregon State with a major in business education.

While at Punahou, he was the recipient of the Charles Cooke scholarship for baseball. He also received a baseball scholarship at Oregon State.

His affiliation with the Outrigger Canoe Club is over 20 years. He was granted a special athletic membership by the Board of Directors in 1966, an intermediate membership in 1967 and became a regular member in 1971.

Henry has participated in more than sports at the Club. From the beginning he was active in Club affairs. Starting as a member of the Building and Grounds Committee in 1965, Henry has been a committee member for every year, except three.

During that time, he has also been chairman of Canoe Racing and Softball, coach of the Canoe Racing team, member of the Board of Directors, Coordinating Director of the Admissions, Long Range Planning, Entertainment, Public Relations and Historical Committees.

The Club recognized his athletic achievements and Club involvement by awarding Henry the prestigious Winged "O" in 1983.

During these years, Henry was busy in a variety of endeavors. From 1963-73, he was vice-president and general manager of Duke Kahanamoku's night club in the International Market Place. From 1973-75, he was director of marketing for Lyle Guslander at Amfac Hotels. From 1975-80, he was involved with Tavana's Polynesian Spectacular and was executive assistant to Dr. Richard Kelley of the Kelley Hotels. From 1980-84, he was vice-president of Andy Bumatai Enterprises. At the present time, Henry is vice president of marketing for Air Molokai, president of Aloha Lokahi Ohana, Inc. and vice-president of Shell Productions.

Busy as he was, Henry had time to raise a family of five children. Kathy, Patrick, twins Bruce and David, and Leslie have all been active in Outrigger activities.

Henry is still active in Club softball and canoe paddling. He has participated in 20 Molokai-to-Oahu races and is very active in the Advertising Softball League, the Waikiki Bar and Restaurant League and in OCC softball.

Henry is the kind of member that the OCC is proud to have. He's easy to recognize, just look for a good-looking Hawaiian with a friendly smile. ☺

ODKF Awards Scholarships, Grants

The Outrigger Duke Kahanamoku Foundation has awarded $6,500 in scholarships and grants for 1989, Gerri Pedesky, president of the ODKF has announced.

Three $500 athletic grants were given to Kelly Beck, Nalu Kukea and Traci Phillips.

Beck will use his grant to train for national bicycling competition. In 1988, he participated in the U.S. Cycling Federation's Olympic Training Camp, won the Hawaii State Championships and qualified for the National Championships/Olympic Road Trials in Washington. He hopes to become the first cyclist from Hawaii to make the national team.

Kukea will use his grant to compete in national and international kayak competition this summer. He is presently representing the United States in competition in West Germany, and will compete later this summer in the Junior World Trials, Junior World Championships and the National Championships. He is considered the top junior kayaker in the United States.

Traci, a member of the U.S. Olympic team in 1988, will use her grant to continue kayak training this summer. She, too, will compete in the European Regatta, national and world championships.

The Foundation also awarded five $1,000 scholarships to student/athletes for the 1989-90 school year. Recipients are:

Carmel R. M. Aana, a sophomore at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. Carmel is a swimmer/water polo player at UWM.

Melody Heidel, an '89 graduate of Punahou School, who will attend either the University of Vermont or the University of New Hampshire. A liberal arts major, she is a paddler and runs track.

Kehau Kali, a junior at the University of California at Santa Barbara. A sociology major, she paddles and was a member of the UCSB crew.

Keone Kali, an '89 graduate of Punahou, who will attend UCLA where he will major in civil engineering. He was the 1989 state swimming champion in the 50 and 100 freestyle, and will swim for the Bruins.

Nalu Kukea, an '89 graduate of Kamehameha, who will attend UC Irvine where he will major in engineering. He is a national junior kayak champion and will train for the 1992 Olympics while attending UCI. ☺

Memorial Day Services

More than 100 Club members gathered on May 29 to remember their loved ones whose ashes have been scattered at sea off the Club. Clockwise from top left: The Rev. William Kaina officiated at the services. Gerri Pedesky, Kris Smith, Diane Stowell and Ulu Friese gather leis to take out in the canoes. Mark Buck, John Goss and Hank Lass throw leis into the ocean in memorial.
