Men's Molokai-to-Oahu Race

Canoes lined up on beach at Hale O Lono Harbor prior to the start of the Men's Molokai race in Oct. 47 teams from around the world participated in this years race.

Wishing You a Very Merry 'Thon

By Leighton Taylor and Mike Givens

Last-minute holiday shoppers can get away with procrastination, but Honolulu runners begin preparations for the December Honolulu Marathon months in advance. The big date this year is Sunday, December 12. In these final days of tapering, worrying, carboloading and flu-avoiding, the Running Committee would like to remind you to add five more items to your Christmas (Marathon) list:

- 1. Club Marathon Runners Breakfast. Sign up at the front desk for this special annual event to be held in the Library Dining Room, Sunday, December 5, at 9:30 a.m. Dine and plan strategy with fellow runners and visiting entrants from Tahiti, Europe and the Mainland. Hear Jack Scaff and Max Telford reveal speed and survival secrets.
- 2. Encourage non-running friends and family to sign up for the Outrigger Aid Station. This Kahala Oasis is in the right place at the right time manned by all the right people. Outrigger Samaritans see all the runners twice. Sign up at the front desk to help Marathoners by giving out water, Coke, wet sponges and encouragement.
- 3. All Club Marathoners Sign Up on the list posted across from the Beach Shop. After the race, leave your name and finishing time at the Front Desk for the Running Committee. This is important for recognition in "The Outrigger" and for Club awards.
 - 4. Pick up your OCC Running Jersey at the Beach Shop (if you signed up for one).

5. Look for the Outrigger Victory Camp in Kapiolani Park near the tennis courts across from the Aquarium immediately after your finish (note: Finish = Victory!). Refreshments and congratulations will be served under the OCC Banner.

Marathon Aid Station

For the 8th consecutive year, the Club will man an aid station in the Honolulu Marathon on Sunday, December 12. Without this vital function, very few runners would reach the finish line.

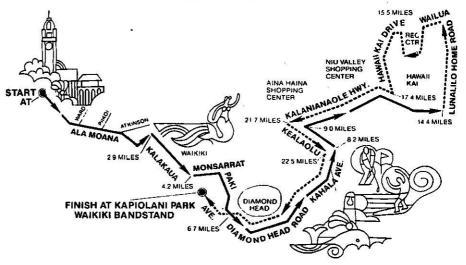

Located on Kahala Avenue near Pueo Avenue, the station dispenses cold sponges, water and Coca Cola, together with lots of encouragement and aloha—much appreciated by the more than 7,000 contestants.

Station director Cline Mann says that approximately 100 persons are needed to man the station from 5:30 a.m. (set-up time) to about 11:30 a.m., when the 6-hour runners have gone by. Many of our helpers are former runners with previous aid-station experience, but newcomers are always welcome and are expressly invited.

Please sign up at the front desk of the Club after December 1. An exciting and rewarding experience is in store for you.

World Championship on the Big Island By Joe Teipel

Exactly 850 fine-tuned athletes, including superb specimens from the OCC, traveled from 45 states and 13 foreign countries to compete in the ultimate human endurance test—the Ironman Triathalon.

757 men and 93 women began this grueling, but increasingly popular annual event, but only 91% actually finished. The rest dropped out due to human and mechanical failures ranging

Excitement and celebration broke out in the normally sleepy little coastal town of Kailua-Kona on the Big Island as winner Dave Scott crossed the finish line in the record time of 9:08:23. A fitness consultant from Davis, California, he had the fastest individual times in the 2.4-mile swim, 112-mile bike race and 26.2-mile marathon run. Blazing past the race finish line in a record 10:54:08 was the first lady of Triathalon, ironwoman Julie Leach.

Our first OCC member to finish, Roger Cundall, clocked in 312th place with a time of 12:37:32. Not far behind was James Krueger with a time of 12:50:38. Jim Stahl, with a respectable time of 13:39:44, was the 475th person across the finish line and Eve Anderson the 712th at 16:11:48.

Roger Cundall was the first OCC member to finish the Ironman Triathalon. His time: 12:37:32.

Major Change in Paddleboard World

The 5th Annual OCC Winter Paddleboard Race will occur this month, not as is customary in early January. The change was announced recently by Dale Hope, the Club's Paddleboard Committee Chairman, for the purpose of allowing and encouraging greater numbers of participants.

Typically, about two to three dozen stalwarts turn out for this 10,000 km (6.2 miles) paddleboard marathon and Dale hopes (pun intended) to see many more on Saturday, December 18, at 10 a.m. for check-in.

Delicious sandwiches and refreshing beer and soda are among the rewards and awards for all those who go the distance.

The event is sponsored by OCC. There are three boards at the Club and no fee is charged, so get your entry blanks at the front desk on race day, December 18.

See you there!

It's a Loooong Swim

Sunday, December 19 is the day of the second, possibly annual, Hawaiian Christmas Loooong-Distance Invitational Rough H²O Swim. The 5-mile event is an open-ocean swim from Sans Souci Beach, out the OCC Channel to a buoy, around the outer Ala Wai Harbor Channel buoy, back to the first buoy and the starting/finish point.

Because the course will not be marked, each swimmer must have an escort; kayaks and surfboards are recommended. Escort boats are forbidden; however a small outboard official boat

Escorts are badly needed, so if you want to participate in this capacity, please sign up at the Front Desk. You'll receive a T-shirt, enjoy the Awards Luau and provide a safety service to a swimmer who could not compete without you.

The gentleman on the right is easily recognized, but who is the keiki, what was the occasion and when was the photograph taken? The first correct answer earns a buffet dinner for two. Mark your entry with the date and time you leave it at the front desk, addressed to the PR Committee.

Karl Heyer IV won Photo Contest #10 by being first to correctly identify the winners of the 1967 Molokai to Oahu race. They are, standing: Al Lemes, Fred Hemmings, Jr., Mike Clifford, Jon Haneberg, Tommy Holmes, Bruce Clifford. Seated: Jody D'Embeau, Hal Burchard, Mark Buck, Henry Ayau.

Attention swimmers! No need for you to get out of the water. It's only coincidence that great white shark expert Dr. John McCosker (he's director of the San Francisco Steinhart Aquarium) and Richard Ellis (illustrator and author of shark books), are using the Club as their December headquarters. Ellis is in town to promote his new book of dolphins at the Waikiki Aquarium on December 15. McCosker is on his way to Australia to join Leighton Taylor in a research project on sharks. Leighton, of course, is director of the Waikiki Aquarium and contributes those informative "Outrigger Neighbors" articles that appear from time to time in this publication . . .

From our Manager

By Ray Ludwig

As the end of the year approaches, I would like to call your attention to the holiday schedule published in this issue and encourage all members to participate in as many of the joyful festivities as possible.

The Christmas Day open house for members only is an especially meaningful tradition for "old timers," who look forward to getting together for their annual Anzai's Banzai and sumptuous pupus. It's also an opportune time for new members to get acquainted, and it's free! No reservations are necessary, but please make your reservations early for other functions to avoid disappointment, since we expect heavy bookings.

Despite economic hard times, the Club has had a very successful year, due, primarily, to the time and energy expended by our many hardworking committees. This, combined with the expertise of our dedicated OCC staff, has resulted in our being able to meet operating goals set by the Board of Directors. This year we managed to accomplish objectives in the food and beverage departments and still maintain a moderate price structure.

Speaking of success, all social events offered this year were most gratifying to the Entertainment Committee and management. All were well received and considered to be most successful by those involved.

Just a few reminders concerning the lobby area: The telephones are for the convenience of all members. Please don't use an instrument for an unreasonable length of time if someone is waiting to make a call. Also, this area is not intended to be a Junior member social center. Your attention is called to Club rules which stipulate no eating, drinking or swimwear permitted in the lobby; gentlemen must wear tops. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

The slot in the lobby bulletin board is for deposit of payment to your account after the business office closes at 4:30 p.m. and on weekends. Occasionally we find mail in the repository. Outgoing mail will be accepted by the receptionist for pick-up by the postman when he delivers the mail. When you sign the register upon entering the Club, be sure to check the daily mail list maintained at this location; there may be something waiting for you.

Finally, our OCC staff has asked me to convey their thanks and appreciation to the members who contributed so generously to the employees' Christmas fund. Your thoughtful gifts will help to make their Christmas merrier.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS from the management and all Outrigger personnel.

Bicycling in Bear Country

By Leighton Taylor

The Outrigger Canoe Club does not yet have a bicycling team but when and if the Club decides to form one, I nominate Norm Dunmire as Captain of the Touring Group. Most members know Norm as an avid sailor and an active member of the Beach Safety Committee (a job which he takes very seriously and spends at least two hours a day checking the beach).

This summer, however, Norm spent his vacation far from the shore cycling more than 3,000 miles, half of it on gravel roads, from Fairbanks, Alaska to Missoula, Montana, via Valdez and the Yukon territory. This rugged area, part of it in the shadow of Mt. McKinley and most of it frequented by bears, hard-drinking construction workers, and 10-ton trucks, is not real popular country for bicycle touring. In fact, Norm has the distinction of being the first and probably only cyclist to make the trip solo.

Norm chose as his wheeled-steed a specialized bicycle quite different from the 10-speed touring models. His "Stump Jumper" is a special heavyduty, off-the-road touring model that traces its recent ancestry to the rugged unpaved fire trails of Mt. Tamalpais in northern California's Marin County. This tough-framed, balloon-tired, heavy-duty 15-speed derailleur bike proved to be ideal for the gravel, mud, dust and asphalt of the roads he traveled.

Norm left well-prepared for his trip. In true Hawaiian athlete fashion, he even designed and produced a special T-shirt for the ride. He researched the route and knew fairly well what to expect, although his friends claim he picked the route from Fairbanks to Montana because on a map it looks all downhill from top to bottom of the page. A few quotes from Norm's daily journal give a tantalizing taste of what the trip was like.

The very first stop on June 26th coincided with an annual town party celebrating 24 hours of daylight. Norm had planned to camp in the local campground but was warned by a knowledgable tavern owner (what was a bike rider like Norm doing in a bar?) that he would be wiser if he pitched his tent behind the tavern. Norm's journal records that "the local Indians partied all night long, and the next morning when I went into town and visited the campground there were tire marks on the main street where cars had been making doughnuts nearby where my tent would have been pitched."

Along the route several days later Norm inspected a new auditorium being built in local Alaskan style from planks and beams and "met a girl on the job-painting-who had paddled for Hui Nalu for five years." It's hard to escape Outrigger competition even in the wilds of Alaska.

At one rest stop during the first week of his trip (in yet another tavern), Norm shared beers with two Alaskan bush pilots who "find out I'm from Hawaii and riding my bike through Alaska and the Yukon. These bush pilots know all the roads, and they said forget it. Most of the roads are too rough even to fly over. The bush pilot did ask me if I wanted to go up for a ride, and after three hours with him in the plane, and several back-country landings, I must admit the bike feels a lot safer. Glad to be back on the road."

Norm also picked up local knowledge from truck drivers. "I had lunch at Sheep Creek Bar (another one of Norm's rest stops). Some of the truckers recognized me from Montana Creek and informed me that at the rate I'm traveling, I'll be spending the winter in the Yukon."

It wasn't all rest stops and bars though: "Fish Eye Lake, Campbell Highway-the mud on this road was about six inches deep for about a mile. The condition of the road was soup . . . more rain late in the afternoon, had to set up tent in the rain. Road mud has jammed the bike gears, and the bike is now down to two speeds (from the normal 15). Still raining hard. It's not too bad to ride in the rain, but it's hard to stop and set up camp. The hardest thing is to get up in the morning and start out in the rain, so cold you can see your breath. This is the hardest 44 miles of the trip, 10-plus hours; most all of the gears are jammed. When I come to a hill, I have to stop and get off and move the chain over by hand."

Local wildlife lore caused Norm a little concern: "They tell stories of moose attacking cars and even trains. Moose will turn on a train and it's not unusual for a locomotive to pull into the station with several sets of horns on the front. You're not allowed to shoot within sight of the road during hunting season, and also you can't shoot a bear even in self-protection. There's a $75 fine for doing so."

After 44 days and 3,267 miles on the road, Norm arrived in Missoula, Montana, happy but eager to check on the safety of the Outrigger beach. He had made the entire trip without a flat or breaking a part on the bicycle. His last journal entry notes that "there were times when I would not have blamed the bike if it had broken."

Dear Friends-

My sincerest "thank you" for the memorable evening held in honor of my retirement. The luau, beautiful leis, calabash bowl and monetary gifts will always be remembered. But most of all, I will cherish my years spent at the Outrigger Canoe Club and especially all the wonderful people whom I have had the pleasure of knowing over the years.

Again much mahalo! K. Anzai

Meet Marty

If you've dined at the Club recently, you've already met Marty Kelly. He is our new Dining Room Manager and Club Assistant Manager, filling the shoes of Richard Lazarski and Mary Horikama. Richard foresook the assistant managerial post at the Club for Saudi Arabia, and Mary resigned as Dining Room Manager to take over the Banquet Coordinator position. Marty comes to us from the Cavalier Restaurant where he was maitre d' for six years.

Marty's background includes far more than restaurant experience. A graduate of St. Mary's University in Baltimore, Maryland, he did social work for 10 years. Five of those years were spent at a facility for Florida's most difficult juveniles—a job that left him well-prepared to handle the most recalcitrant diner.

With his wife, Judy, Marty came to Hawaii in 1979 to enter the Ph.D. program in psychology at UH Manoa. He took a part-time job at Michel's as a busboy (how many busboys do you know with a Master's degree?), but it wasn't long before he was made a waiter, and moved on to the Cavalier as maitre d'. It is the Club's good fortune to have him with us in his dual capacity. He is aided by Nancy Hemphill as hostess and Del Ching as host during the dinner hour.

Chef Teruya is a man of many talents, not all of them culinary. These menacing pumpkins that greeted members and visitors to the Club on Halloween were the chef's handiwork!

The Good Old Days?

A few years ago, when PR Committee member Bill Kea interviewed several old-time members of the Club for their reminiscences, he elicited this little gem from Ernest T. Chase, who joined the Club in 1910. It is an item from the minutes of the Board of Directors meeting of June 18, 1918.

"Mrs. Arthur G. Smith and Mrs. L. F. Leo . . . strongly recommended compelling women bathers to wear suits conforming to the following: trousers to the bend of the knee, suit cut four inches down from the neck and two inches below the armpit.

"They were also very desirous of securing the official backing of the Board of Directors in their campaign for keeping persons attired in bathing suits from the public highways."

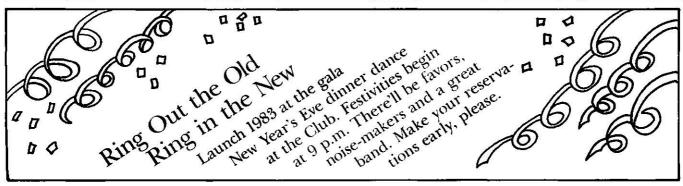

The result?

The following motion: "That the Board of Directors objects to the indiscriminate walking on the streets of men and women in bathing suits not covered . . . and in favor of requiring that proper bathing suits should be worn by women bathers."

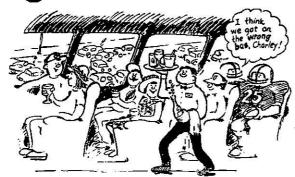

Like the ads say, "You've come a long way, baby."
