

Basketball's A Rough Kind Of Sport For Ball Tossers

Familiar Faces Present At Near-Melee, Although Diamond Stars Not Involved

MEMBERS of the fraternity of baseball fans who attended the basketball mills at the Armory last night must have been homesick for Moilili and the annual series of diamond wrangles, for there, on the floor were the familiar forms and faces of Jack Quinn, Mr. Nolan and other baseball celebrities. There, also, as often at Moilili was a near battle when a member of the Outrigger team chose himself a member of the Palama rooting section and made war talk to him.

Friends of the Outrigger player escorted him off the lot while friends of the Palama man helped him off with his overcoat. By the time the overcoat was off the other half of the sketch was under control of several Surfers and peace was declared, much to the disappointment of the spectators who had loitered around after the game.

In the first, and only real game of the evening, All Around Chinese picked a victory out of a 33 to 28 score from the University of Hawaii, in a fast game. The score was 22 all at the end of the third quarter after having run zig-zag from one team to another until then.

The second game, between the Pals and the Surfers, was a good go in spite of a lopsided score in favor of the Nottage gang until the final quarter when it began to look like a football game. Tackling was high wide and handsome, charging was of the deliberate variety shown by an angry billy goat, and the general atmosphere was one of hilarity among the paid and deadhead admissions. During the game, and after being razed by an obstreperous fan, the Outrigger center walked over to the stands and murmured sweet somethings in the fan's ear. After the whistle blew and Referee Ligda had announced the final score the little almost-jam occurred.

Dope on the first game was as follows:

A. C. A.	Positions	University.
Ah Fo Lung	Forward	W. Chung
Jis Liu	Forward	Will Chung
Bung Chung	Center	Will Chung
F. Tyau	Guard	Matsuguma

The National Guard of Hawaii basketball team and the Marines five were winners Saturday night at the Armory in the Honolulu Basketball league double-header. Both games were close and both were decided in the final quarter of play.

The Marines won from Luke Field 29 to 20, while the Guardsmen won from the Navy 35 to 20.

In the latter game it was nip and tuck all the way for the first three quarters. Then the Guards forged ahead. The Guardsmen played a great combination game and beat the Navy on free throwing!

In the other game the Luke Field team put up a stiff battle but showed a lack of practice. Woloch starred for the winners.
