

GREATEST REGATTA EVER, PREDICTION OF EVERYONE

Rival Oarsmen Ready For Annual Regatta All Crews Are Strong and Seem To Be Favorites; Hilo 'Dark Horse'

Interest in the Regatta is growing intense. Groups may be found congregated at different places speculating as to the probable winners. Of course the senior six-oared barge event is the talk of the day and from the rumors now circulating all four of the crews seem to be the favorites. One clique has it that the Healanis are sure to win; another group is willing to wager their last cart-wheel on the Myrtles; still other fans are of the opinion that the Honolulu will nose across the finish line in the lead; while the Hilo contingent are certain that they can beat any barge on the harbor by a length. At any event the senior race gives promise of being the very best fight ever witnessed on a Regatta day.

Healanis

There is no denying that each of the four clubs has exceptionally strong senior crews in the field this year. The Healanis have a formidable six in D. C. Baiek, stroke; J. H. Woodhouse, 5; E. K. Fuller, 4; William Hollinger, 3; E. K. Kanakani, 2; E. L. Derby, bow. Baiek has a world of strength and can pull the entire course at top stroke. He graduated from the freshman to the senior crew, which is an unusual occurrence. Bob Fuller has been absent from the rowing game for five years and did not touch an oar until last Friday. But the husky diver was in good shape and, much to the surprise of everyone, went right in and made the crew. This is Hollinger's first appearance in the crew for two years. He has been a good oarsman and his strong pull will add noticeably to the speed of the six. Derby is conceded to be a star. Kanakani, better known as the Hawaiian Lion, is pulling his first year in the senior barge. He gave a good account of himself in the freshman boat last year. Probably the most consistent and stable man of the crew is Woodhouse. "Stubby" Kruger, claimed by his followers to be the star of stars, as a exswain, will hold the tiller for his crew. The Healanis will use an unnamed boat which they maintain is the best boat on the harbor. This boat was built in Honolulu at very little expense. With this lineup the Blue and White hope to win the big event of the day.

Myrtles Strong

But the Myrtles have a crew that must be reckoned with. Frank A. Becket, who was stroke in 1912 for the Myrtles against the Alameda club and who has not been in the game since then, will stroke this year's six. Boyer, at No. 5, will pull his first year in a senior boat, although he was stroke in last year's Junior crew. The fourth seat will find Duke Kahannamoku pulling a great oar. Parker, No. 3, who is an all-round athlete has made a very credible showing in the barge work. The senior stroke of last year, Anderson, will be at No. 2.

Carter will undoubtedly set in the bow. With Oss, in the pair-oared boat last year they defeated the Healanis double. The Red and White feel the water is capable of cleaning up anything that dips an oar in the transient cent waters of the harbor.

Honolulu

The Honolulu have made good and will be contenders, despite the handicap they have had resulting from lack of oars and poor barges. Their boat will be the poorest one entered. Their stroke, Herman Gramberg, is as fine a leader as any club can boast of. Rose Boyd, Timoa, Stone and Smith are in the pink of condition and will give a mighty good account of themselves.

Bob Conkline has been working extremely hard with these men and is of the opinion that they will enter the race Saturday fit as it is possible to make them. Hough is as good a coxswain as any of the clubs can talk about. He sat in the stern in a majority of the winning barges, when with the Myrtles. There are plenty of backers who will stake their last jitzoy on the Gold and Black.

Hilo

How about Hilo? The visitors seem to be the "dark horse" of the Regatta. There is no doubt that the Crescent city six is strong. They have tremendous speed and a fast getaway. The boat they will use, the Iwalani J, is said to be one of the fastest that ever nosed it's way down the harbor course. Hilo is very confident and Captain Nicols is of the opinion that his huskies will cross the tape, at least a length ahead of the next boat. Every man pulling for the Red and Gold is a veteran. Three of them, Nicols, Rowatt and Desha, are old Healanis oarsmen and need no introduction.

The freshman race, which comes next to the senior event will undoubtedly be a duel between the Healanis and Myrtle crews. Both have a husky and well trained crew and it is a toss up at the present for the winner.

Girls Keen For Go

One of the most interesting events of the Regatta will be the six-oared barge race between the two girl's crews from the Kunalu boat club. The "Reds" have been working hard under the coaching of "Dad" Center and give every indication of being able to hold their own against the "Blues." This is the first time in a good many years that crews, manned by girls, have been entered on a Regatta card. These girls do not play at rowing but take it as great, if not a greater interest in the game than the men. They are attentive and have profited immensely in the past few weeks by the coach's instructions. While the main interest will be centered on the he-ave events, nevertheless a thrill is bound to run through the crowd when the starter raises his gun to send the "Blues" and "Reds" on their way down the course to the judges stand.

The Myrtles, and Healanis declare an "open house" on Regatta day, and from the time old Sol sticks his nose over the Koolau range until he goes to bed in the west the harbor front will be a scene of gaiety. Refreshments will be served and dancing will be in order.
