

PLUNGE FOR MEN ADDED TO LIST

Close Entries Tomorrow
Noon Instead of Today

The annual women's swimming meet Friday night in the Westervelt tank will have an added event in a plunge for men. The event was announced this morning by the committee. Victor Ligda has a number of plungers ready for the event.

The entry lists for the meet were to have closed at noon today but it was decided by the committee today to keep them open 24 hours longer in order to give all the clubs a chance to file more entries.

The competition for the Swanzy cup is expected to be exceedingly keen. Mariechen Wehselau, Out-rigger Canoe Club champion, is swimming in great form and some new Hawaiian records are certain. There is also the possibility of a world tank record.

The committee hopes to get most of the Olympic swimming team members entered. The fans have not seen the swimmers in action since before the Olympic games and those who contributed to the fund appear to be keen to see what the trip has done for the team members.
