WHY DAD CENTER'S MEET PROVED SUCCESSFUL

"I WANT to congratulate Dad Center on the success of the Hawaii-Japanese swimming meet, for the Outrigger coach was the first to suggest the meet, to apply for a sanction, and then to get the backing of two afternoon newspapers.

It costs money to bring good attractions here and newspaper publicity is vital in stirring up interest.

THE ADVERTISER was mighty glad to go along with the two evening newspapers in boosting the meet, believing that the attraction warranted it. In fact THE ADVERTISER gave just as much advance space as did the others, and the result—a packed house Friday night.

The only way to boost swimming in Honolulu is for the newspapers to get behind the sport. THE ADVERTISER has always taken the initiative and it is refreshing to note that the other newspapers have finally come to life. Had they done so last fall the A. A. U. would not have dropped $300 on their annual carnival.

WARREN KEALOHA STAGES REAL COMEBACK

FRRIENDS of Warren Kealoha, and they are legion, were delighted with his performance in the back stroke event at Punahou Friday night. He was never pressed to win from his Japanese rival, but in order to do this, Warren trained faithfully. He got rid of a lot of superfluous flesh and had he been harder pressed would undoubtedly have tied or broken the world's record for the 200 metres event.

Warren has said all along that he would be a candidate for the next Olympic team, declaring that he could get into condition any time he wanted to do so.

If there are to be any Honolulu swimmers entered in the National championships at the Sesqui Centennial in Philadelphia next August, Warren Kealoha must be considered. His performance justifies entering him.

DOUBLE-HEADER POLO

ATENTION is called to a double-header polo match at Kapiolani Park this afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock, when the Blues and Yellows will clash in the first mix, to be followed by a match in which army teams will play.

Officers and midshipmen of the German cruiser Hamburg are especially invited to these matches. No admission is charged and a fine afternoon of sport is promised.

We have real polo teams here, some of the best horses in the world, and for pure and unadulterated excitement nothing can compare with a polo match between evenly matched teams.

Come out and see for yourself.

look like a man that intends to swing on the first ball he pitches," he said. "I appear over-anxious.

"The pitcher, realizing that I am set to swing, is going to become anxious himself. He is going to put everything he can on the ball, and he is going to put it where I will be least likely to hit it. Nine times out of 10 he will pitch a ball.

"I might reverse my attitude. I might appear careless and relaxed. The pitcher, noticing my position, will figure that I intend to let the ball pass and he consequently will figure the time ripe to shove one through the groove. It would be his chance to slip over a strike on
