Although baseball magnates have indicated they unanimously favor the re-election of Judge Kensaw Mountain Landis, as high commissioner of baseball, it is said they are not at all favorable to a boost in his salary from $50,000 to $60,000 as proposed by some.

financing the enterprise in exchange for a bit of land owned by the Outrigger club jutting on its property. There is to be an entirely new canoe shed and pavilion. The office and commissary building is to be completely remodeled. The buildings will be moved slightly toward Diamond Head so as to give a greater expanse of beach in front of the new hotel. Cost of the construction will be about $4000. Dickey and Wood, architectes, drew the plans.
