WHY "BUSTER" CRABBE IS GREAT SWIMMER

WHILE on the subject of the Olympic games, it might interest followers of swimming in the Hawaiian islands to learn just why Buster Crabbe of the Outrigger club is really a great swimmer, the only Hawaiian entrant in the Nationals last year to show real class.

There is no secret about Crabbe's success. He takes his swimming seriously, and he works hard, works just the way Duke Kahana-moku worked when he was smashing records, and the way Mariechen Wehselau worked when she won a place for herself on the American team four years ago.

Claim is made in some quarters that the climate down here makes some folks lazy. The climate did not affect Duke or Mariechen, neither has it affected Buster Crabbe.

How about some of the others?
