

Duke Kahanamoku

Duke Kahanamoku, the daddy of Hawaiian swimmers, who was recently reinstated as an amateur, is the mainstay of the Los Angeles Athletic club water polo team. It is reported that Duke will enter the national championships to be held in San Francisco at the Fleishhacker pool June 7, 8, 9 and 10. There was a possibility of the Los Angeles water polo team going to San Francisco to participate in the national championships.

Duke recently played an unusual golf shot for the Grantland Rice Sportlight. Slow motion pictures were taken of him as he entered the water hazard at the 17th hole at Sunset field, Los Angeles, and played a full explosion shot of a ball lying under four inches of water. As so often happens with freak shots of this nature, Duke got away with it and reached the edge of the green.
