Events Booked

SEVERAL old records are expected to go by the boards this morning at the sixth annual surf-paddling championships to be run off in the Ala Wai. Races will commence at 9 o'clock.

Duke P. Kahanamoku, former world's champion swimmer and the idol of all Hawaiians, will act as referee of the game.

A stiff, grueling race is expected to materialize in the 100 yards open. Tommy Kiakona of Hui Nalu, present titlist, will be given a competition that could be hoped for in this race. Tom Blake of Outrigger Canoe club, using the newly developed cigar-shaped board, has been through his paces in great practice and has crashed the old record several times. Should he perform as his friends are expecting him to, Blake will force Kiakona to stretch himself to the limit. Many fans of this Hawaiian sport are expected to turn the tables on the champion.

BIG WOMEN'S RACE

The quarter mile open for women should develop into another real dinger. Beatrice Newport's old record of 3 minutes 45 3-5 seconds is none too safe, for Dorothy and Fred Slaght are going great gun according to reports and are expected to give the present champion a battle.

Another feature on today's program is the three-quarter mile club relay. Hui Nalu is slight favorite to win this event from her Outrigger rivals. The record for this relay is expected to go boom.

The half-mile is another event for which Tommy Kiakona and Tom Blake are expected to race neck and neck for first honors. The present mark of 7 minutes 2 seconds is held by Kiakona. It will no doubt be broken and sent crashing into oblivion.
