Duke Kahanamoku will swim two different races on Friday night, February 14, at the Natatorium, when the Women's Swimming Association of Hawaii will officially open the A. A. U. swim program for the season. The first race will start at 8 p. m.

Norman Ross well known in Honolulu and throughout the swimming world, will be seen in exhibition races. The public will again witness two of the greatest aquatic luminaries ever seen in dual competition.

In addition to the many scheduled open events, four junior district association championships will be contested. Many of the swimming organizations have their swimmers training seriously for the big program of races. Championship gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded in all the junior district races. There will also be medals for other events.

The Royal Hawaiian band will add to the program by playing a special concert of Hawaiian music before and during the evening's events. This will be an extra feature.

The 300 meter individual medley will bring our best women performers in the district together. Mildred Slaughter, Olga Clark and Lorena Hines of the Outrigger; Jennie Woodd; Beatrice and Barbara Nicoll, May Westcott of the W. S. A. of Hawaii and a few more entries from other organizations will make the competition the best seen since the women's championships last year.

The events to be contested for men: 800 meter club relay, 100 meter freestyle for service men, 200 meter backstroke, junior district championship; 800 meter freestyle, junior district championship, and the 200 meter breaststroke.

The events for women: 50 meter
