Atisanoe Loses Again

Bay and ran its unbeaten streak to six at yesterday's John D. Kaupiko Regatta. Behind its "The Heat is On" cry, OCC again topped the century mark with 112 points. Kailua finished second with 76 and host Hui Nalu third with 46.

Kaneohe Triumphs

Kaneohe advanced to the State Senior Majors Little League tournament by winning the District 1 title with a 4-0 shutout of the Kailua Americans yesterday at Castle High. Ryan Matsuda pitched a four-hitter, struck out seven and walked none. Earlier in the tournament, Todd Habel pitched a four-hitter and Danny Sellers had a five-inning, no-hitter for Kaneohe.

Waipahu Thumps Iolani

Waipahu pounded out 23 hits, including four by Beau Oshiro, to rout Iolani, 17-5, yesterday in an American Legion baseball game at Iolani Field. In another game Kevin Hue hit three-run home as Hawaii Kai defeated Kam-Windward, 13-3, in a 7-inning, 10-run-rule shortened game.

OCC Keeps Heat On

True to this year's club motto, Outrigger Canoe Club kept the heat on the rest of the Oahu Hawaiian Canoe Racing Association clubs at Kaneohe

One-Hour Run

James Gallup covered 10 miles, 1,058 yards in 61 minutes to win the Mid-Pacific Road Runners Club's 1-Hour Run yesterday morning at Kaiser High track. Gallup was also tops in his age division, 45-49. Second overall was Rick Ehlers (10 miles, 165 yards) and Sterling Sasaki third (10 miles, 144 yards).

Aloha Bowl Deadline

Aloha Bowl annual ticket holders have until tomorrow to mail their checks to retain their seats for this year's game on Dec. 28. Unclaimed reservations will be pooled with other remaining tickets for public sale next month. Checks should be sent to: Aloha Bowl, 1110 University Avenue, Honolulu, 96808. Call 947-4141 for more information.

Top seeds Lee, Akagi earn Wailea Open Tennis titles

WAILEA, Maui — Top seeds George Lee and Vane Akagi won singles titles yesterday at the Wailea Open Tennis Tournament.

Lee defeated Howard Tacub, 6-4, 6-4 to earn his second men's open title of the year.

In the women's title match, Akagi stopped second-seed Rose Thomas, 6-2, 6-4 for her fifth open title of the year.

In the men's semifinals earlier yesterday, Tacub defeated second-seeded Mike Racuya, 6-2, 6-1 and Lee stopped Robert Lau, the No. 3 seed. Scores of the Lee-Lau match were not available.

In the women's doubles final, Akagi and Gaye Lynn Gensler defeated Rose Thomas and May Sapulu, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In the semifinals, Thomas and Sapulu stopped Kathy and Karen Felicidad, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2 and Akagi and Gensler defeated Diane Akata and Lehua Hough, 6-3, 6-1.

Atisanoe falls to 5-3

TOKYO — Grand champion Chiyonofuji used a belt throw to defeat Konishiki Sunday in the Nagoya Grand Sumo Tournament.

Konishiki, also known as Salevaa Atisanoe of Nanakuli, fell to 5-3. Chiyonofuji is 6-2.

Kitao, a 6-foot-6 wrestler trying for his first tournament title, boosted his record to 7-1 by defeating yokozuna (grand champion) Takasato. Kitao now has a clear shot at the title, having already upset Chiyonofuji and all three ozeki (champions).

Ka Mo'i, OCC win again

Ka Mo'i canoe club of Makaha won its seventh consecutive Hui Wa'a regatta yesterday at the Waikiki Beach Boys Regatta at Waikiki.

At Kaneohe Bay, Outrigger scored more than 100 points for the sixth week in a row to win the OHCRA's John Kaupiko Regatta off Kaneohe Marine Corps Air Station.

BACK IN THE SADDLE: I tried to tell them in Oregon last week how to put out the forest fires that made otherwise sunny skies hazy. But they laughed when I suggested dumping tons of those pesticide-poisoned watermelons on the fires. Some people laughed last year when Molokai farmer Bill Pfeil and a work crew peled his burning house with his crop of watermelons — but it put out the fire and saved the house, though it did look a bit seedy afterward. Bill, of course, went on to win a seat in the state House of Representatives . . .

What's new in Oregon is the state lottery. Tickets are sold in markets, restaurants, fast-food outlets. A ticket features six balloons and costs a dollar. You rub away some paint with a coin and if three of the balloons show the same amount, that's what you win, as little as $2 and up to $10,000, with winners of $100 and more eligible for a jackpot drawing for $6.25 million. Alas, I didn't win □ □ □

DIS AND DOT: Happy to be back home in Hawaii, we found one of those classic local moments — a Briton emceed a dinner for a Japanese. David McNeil, the Brit, emceed a roast and toast for Takeshi Ueda, retiring v-p at Central Pacific Bank, at the Kanraku Tea House. After 17 years with the bank, Takeshi is returning to Japan to join the business consulting firm of IBI Inc. . . . At the Outrigger Canoe Club, they're waiting for the Outrigger Foundation's benefit auction, mostly to see who bids on the "free uncontested divorce" donated by Judge Bruce Ames . . .

Miller is a member of the Rotary Club of Honolulu, which last week celebrated its 70th anniversary . . . IN THE THICK OF THURS.: The latitude and longitude reported by Transpac boat Whistlewind Tues. a.m. put her smack in the middle of Haleakala Crater. Sailing conditions there are difficult, at best, so you can understand the concern of the ship's host, Images Int'l. The ship's crew — all veteran Transpac sailors — radioed back 12 hours later with new bearings — they had accidentally gone first to Hilo, then to Lahaina, before navigating their way to the Diamond Head finish line . . . And you thought Carl Lindquist was lucky when he moved off to Hana, Maui? That's just the start. Carl and the Hotel Hana also happen to be the hosts for Swiftsure III, the yacht first to finish the Transpac. DIS AND DOT: Judge Michael Town saw the item here about Judge Bruce Ames' contribution to the Outrigger Canoe Club's charity auction — a "free uncontested divorce" — and decided to balance things. So Judge Town has donated a "creative wedding" with the creative part coming from wife Bonnie and the legal part from the judge . . . Among the things that New York publicist Peggy Klark is doing on her 26th annual vacation here is looking for a girl to represent Hawaii in the Int'l Debutante Ball at the Waldorf in Dec. . . . The Punaluu Punster, something of an artist himself, had a great time at the opening of the exhibition of Tibetan thanks at the Ramsay Chinatown Galleries. Thanks are paintings on cloth of Tibetan Buddhist sacred symbols and there are 200 of them in the exhibit. CHOP SUEY: At the opening of Bernd Smeiser's Palffy restaurant at the Pacific Grand Hotel, a parking valet had to bring three different Mercedes around front for one customer before he got the right one . . . If anyone has found a good substitute for Celebes Kalossi, I'd like to know. Yup, the bad news is that local sellers have been out of the grandest of coffees for two months now, with no more expected soon. This is getting serious . . . But it is nice to hear that one of my favorite singers, Loretta Ables, who sang in the Beamer Brothers show and later opened for Andy Bumatai during his Monarch Room days at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, will be entertaining at Andrew's-Ward Centre, Thurs. through Sat. evenings beginning Aug. 1 □ □ □

END OF THE LINES: "All That Soul," the musical revue that reviews the history of Black music in America, will indeed go on the road, as was suggested here yesterday. Written, produced and directed by Gwen Wood, the show that was originally presented as a benefit for the NAACP will go on the local military circuit while talks continue with NBC about presenting the extravaganza . . . The restaurant is now called Colours, but the Petite Salon private dining room remains unchanged in old Bistro style . . . Kaanapali, Maui, gets even more tiff-tiff with Monene Bradley opening a Benetton shop at Whaler's Village □ □ □

IF you've a taste for paprika, bell peppers and the like, you'll doubtless want to sample Palffy, the new Austrian and Hungarian cuisine restaurant which Bernd Smeiser has opened in the Pacific Grand Hotel on Amana Street behind KGMB. It's superb! One early diner there was Hans Strasser, Consul General for Austria in Hawaii. Fortunately, the menu describes the various dishes in English—otherwise it would be anybody's guess what went into such dishes as Hortobagyi-Palacsinta, Bogracsgulyas Soup or Bakonyi borju szelet . . . Guido Salmaggi has a painting of Elvis Presley which the singer gave to him (and autographed) in 1968. He's now donating the work (by artist June Kelley) to an auction to benefit junior athletes in Hawaii at the Outrigger Canoe Club July 29 . . .

RAN into Don Boechner, g.m. of John Dominis, at Palffy, and he confirmed that the John Dominis restaurant Andy Anderson is opening in Newport Beach, Calif., will be about twice the size of the Kewalo Basin seafood specialty house. The entire complex is about 33,000 square feet, which also encompasses office space and underground parking. There'll even be a boat dock for 12 yachts so sailors can cruise in for a bite. Boechner admitted he asked Anderson if he was planning to move to California and run for office there. Relieved when Andy said no way, the colorful Boechner said, "Good, 'cause there's no way I'm going through that again." Go through what?

She received numerous gifts of Huggie's Diapers, possibly because Huggie's is a client of Ogilvy & Mather. She was so moved by the client loyalty that she made a vow—if she had a daughter, she said, she would name her Kimberly Clark, the manufacturer of Huggies and a client of O&M in New York. (Talk about job security!) . . . People are beginning to jump on the bandwagon and help First Lady Jean Ariyoshi get her "Million Trees of Aloha" planted.
