OCT. 1 1985

A crew arrives on O'ahu at the Wahine O Ke Kai canoe race. In the background is Waikiki and rainy Manoa Valley.

Favorites win; some surprises at Na Wahine O Ke Kai canoe race

By TONI ROMP-FRIESEN Special To WHT

KAIWI CHANNEL, Hawai'i - Even though pre-race favorites Outrigger Canoe Club won the seventh annual Na Wahine O Ke Kai Moloka'i-to-O'ahu long distance race, there were still a few

There were eight-to 10-foot swells in the Moloka'i Channel with winds of 20-25 knots making the water much choppier than in recent years. The times reflected the rough seas, with Outrigger covering the 40.8 miles from Hale O Lono Harbor to Fort DeRussy on O ahu in six hours. 50 minutes and 31 seconds, compared to last year's course record of 6:12:11.

Offshore Canoe Club of Newport Beach, Calif., was second at 7:01:03 with Lahaina of Maui coming in at 7:03:22.

All three were in fiberglass canoes. In the koa division, Hui Nalu took first place, coming in eighth overall at 7:24:06. Tahiti-FFPP was second at 7:32:22 and Hui Lanakila third.

The biggest surprise came from the Whistler's Canoe Club of Vancouver, B.C. The Canadian crew, made up of white-water kayakers and marathon canoeists, never paddled in an outrigger canoe before they arrived less than a week ago. They finished fifth at 7:14:22. Maire Nui, one of three Tahitian crews, followed them at 7:16:27.

Kai Opua, the only crew from the Big Island, was 11th overall in a glass boat, at 7:34:10, narrowly edging Ka Mo'i of Hui Wa'a by six seconds at the finish.

Paddlers were treated to a pre-race carbo-loading party at the Sheraton Moloka'i, where race director Hannie

Anderson was honored by a special award of appreciation from Na Wahine O Ke Kai. Anderson, who said that "putting on the race is like another full-time job," has been race director since the first one was held in 1979.

She was also a race official when the women made the first crossing of the Kaiwi Channel 10 years ago. "It's worth every minute," Anderson said after receiving her award.

This year's race was dedicated to Lanikila Spencer, a woman from Hui Nalu who had paddled in every Moloka'i race. She died July 14. The local paddling community also mourned the loss of Kai Opua paddling kupuna, Red Kanuha, who died Friday while en-route to the Na Wahine O Ke Kai on Moloka'i. See For the Record for results of the Wahine O Ke Kai.

HAWAII CLIPPING SERVICE P.O. Box 10242-Honolulu, Hawai PHONE: 734-8124 Victoria Custer Elaine Stroup

> HONOLULU ADVERTISER 3 1985

ocean sports iournal

World canoe competition set for Tahiti next July

Compiled by Carol Hogan

In the past, the men's provided. Molokai-to-Oahu canoe race racing season. After that, padto kayak racing until the fol- Oahu canoe race. lowing June when the regatta

Racing Associa- craft. tion formed the International Polynesian Canoe Federation,

Laughlin

Georges Estall, of Papeete, Tahiti, as president. federation held its first outrig- channel race on Oct. 13. ger canoe world-sprint championships in Long Beach, Calif.

they hope to be competitive, 526-1969. they'll have to train year long. One of the most enthusiastic Waterlog proponents of canoe racing is Hugh Laughlin, president of "The championships will be sprint championships with one-sprint championships with one-man, six-man and double-hull events open to men and women in the senior, junior and mashers division," Laughlin said.

Accommodations will be set Toro Bullship Races at Kane
"The championships will be set Mile, women's Molokai-to-Oahu Sunday — Nawiliwili Yacht Club Regatta and Sunday — Nawiliwili Yacht Club Regatta of Nawiliwili Yacht Club Regatta of Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Club Fall Class Boat Regatta. For information, call WYC at 955-4405.

Sunday — Wakiki Yacht Club Fall Class Boat Regatta And The Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Club Fall Class Boat Regatta And The Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Club Fall Class Boat Regatta And The Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Class Boat Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Class Boat Regatta And The Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Class Boat Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Class Boat Nawiliwili Yacht Club Fall Class B

Laughlin was in Hawaii last marked the end of the canoe- week with the Te Oa O Tera women's team, which competed dlers took a break or switched in the women's Molokai-to-

The team didn't fare well, it finished next to last. But, the But a few years ago members women were paddling a brand of the Hawaiian new koa canoe built in Hawaii Canoe Racing and blessed the day before the Association, the race. They also purchased a Tahiti Canoe koa log in Kona and shipped it Michael Ho finished ninth, Racing Associa- to Makaha, where Henry Chaption and the man, a canoe builder from California Canoe Tahiti, is shaping a second koa

"The (first) koa canoe was a little big for the women," little big for the women." teur Surfing Championships at Laughlin said. "In the calm Ventura, Calif., in late Septemocean it did well, but in the ber. with rougher ocean, it didn't.'

Laughlin will remain in Ha- Float Plan waii and accompany the Tahi-Then, in August, 1984, the tian men's team for their cross-

The International Polynesian Canoe Federation will meet in With the world champion- Honolulu following the men's ships scheduled for next July in race. For more information Papeete, paddlers can no longer about the meeting, call HCRA enjoy an off season. Now, if president Michael Tongg at

"No matter how many times Tahiti's To Oa O Tera Canoe you paddle it, it never gets any Club, Laughlin has been involv- shorter," said Katy Bourne, ed in outrigger racing for 26 after helping Outrigger Canoe years. Club win last Sunday's 40.8-"The championships will be mile, women's Molokai-to-Oahu up like an Olympic camp, with ohe Yacht Club last Saturday food, transportation and canoes and Sunday. Tony Pickett won a trophy for most capsizes. When he was 50 years old Doyle requested an over-60 division. He won it last week. "That age group got here faster than I expected," he said. . . .

Cathy Beauford finished fifth in last weekend's $30,000 Stubbies Pro/Michelob Cup International Surfing Tournament at Oceanside, Calif. In the men's competition, while Derek Ho and Hans Hedemann tied for 17th. . . . Bodyboard rider Danny Kim of Waianae scored a perfect 20 to win the United States Ama-

Today-Oct. 8 - Fourth annual Big Island Pro-Am Surfing Trials at Drainpipes at Kalapana in Puna. Weekends only. Entry forms available at Pacific Vibrations and Hobie Sports in Kona, and Orchidland Surfboards in Hilo. For information, call Stan Lawrence at 935-1533.

Tomorrow-Oct. 13 — The $30.000 Citizen-Mitsubishi Aloha Classic windsurfing event at Hookipa Beach Park. For information, call Ehman Produc-tions on Maui at 579-9765. Saturday — Junior Sailing Invitational Fall Regat-ta at Waikiki Yacht Club, For information, call WYC 1 1955-408.

Saturday — Basic sailboarding classes. Eight hours of instruction taught at Keehi Lagoon. Sponsored by the University of Hawaii Campus Center Board. For information, call Brian Okamura at 948-

Saturday — Hawaii Surfing Association contest at Banyans in Kailua-Kona, surf permitting. For information, call Pacific Vibrations at 329-4140.

Saturday-Sunday — National Scholastic Surfing Association Open meet No. 2 at Haleiwa Beach. Sponsored by Hawaiian Ocean Sports Promoters. For information, call Reid Inouye at 671-6255. Saturday-Sunday — El Toro State Championships at Kaneohe Yacht Club. For information, call KYC at 247-4121.

PHONE: 734-8124 Victoria Custer Elaine Stroup HONOLULU ADVERTISER

HAWAII CLIPPING SERVICE

Isle dreamboat that tugs at the heart

Maria Hustace, a 66-year-old widow, has completed a once-inher-lifetime fantasy voyage in a Dillingham tugboat from Honolulu to Kahului, Maui, and is still raving about the "incredible experience.'

Mind you, Maria is not your cheapie tour traveler for whom a weekend in Las Vegas is a big

Last year she spent three days and four nights on the Trans-Siberian Railway going from Siberia to Leningrad. She speaks German, French and Spanish and has been in Australia, Fiji, South America and all over Europe.

She even attended the balls at President Ronald Reagan's last inauguration and received a nice beat," she said as if she were See Crossing on Page A-7

Our honolulu bob krauss

thank you note for the lei she

But the barge trip under a full moon across the Molokai Channel was, she sighed, the ultimate travel experience, a journey into another world as far removed from her neighbors in Makiki as

"The tug is a throbbing heartreciting poetry. "It is sheer power.

She said her dream voyage. began in Our Honolulu when she attended the seventh annual Hawaii Epilepsy Auction last Feb. 3.-One of the items for sale was a ride with an interisland barge.

"I like to go to auctions," Mariaexplained. "A little item in the newspaper about the barge trip; caught my eye.

"The bidding was furious. It. went up to $200 and $300,: enough to fly to the Mainland, but I had made up my mind to go on the barge."

After Maria bought her tugboat: voyage, she had to postpone it:

HAWAII CLIPPING SERVICE P.O. Box 10242-Honolulu, Hawaii PHONE: 734-8124

HONOLULU ADVERTISER

Victoria Custer

Elaine Stroup

IN ONE EAR: Guido Salmaggi, vice consul of Italy, ran into Jose Ferrer at Outrigger Canoe Club. It was the first time they'd seen each other since 1960 when Guido, then gen. dir. of the Brooklyn Opera Company, presented Jose in the title role of Puccini's opera "Gianni Schicci." Jose directed as well as starred and it drew front-page raves from the New York Times. Their OCC meeting was too brief, so they'll be getting together for pasta at Andrew's . . . Then there is longtime Chicago Cubs, Bears and White Sox broadcaster Jack Brickhouse, who after attending the QB Club luncheon got together for a drink with old pal Les Keiter . . . Jerry Weintraub, producer for "Karate Kid II," celebrated a birthday the other day. Richard Field at the Still found out about the birthday because he got two calls from the Mainland and another from Hawaii, all from friends ordering bottles of Dom Perignon to be sent to Weintraub □

P.O. Box 10242-Honolulu, Hawaii PHONE: 734-812:4 Victoria Custer Elaime Stroup HONOLULU STAR BULLETIN OCT 9 1985

HAWAII CLIPPING SERVICE

Molokai Race: a Storied Past

By Cindy Luis Star-Bulletin Writer

IKE old sailors and fishermen, canoe paddlers, too, have their sea stories. Some of the best center around the annual Molokai-to-Oahu race. With the 34th crossing of the Kaiwi Channel scheduled for Sunday, the tales, perhaps, are recalled more vividly during pre-race week than any other time of the year.

will have a chance to swap stories tonight when the first official event of this year's Molokai Ho'e is held at the Waikiki Aquarium. Officials expect members of each of the past 33 winning crews to be in attendance in addition to paddlers from the some 45 clubs entered in the 40.8-mile

While the size of the Channel's waves may grow through the years, no one dares to dispute that the roughest crossing came in 1966. The winner, Waikiki Surf Club, swamped three times before crossing the finish line in six hours, 37 minutes, 13 seconds.

Half of the 12-outrigger field didn't finish in seas with 15-to-20-foot swells and winds up to 35 miles an hour. Canoes from Lanikai, Maili Sons, Order of Kamehameha, even venerable Outrigger, had to be towed to shore.

THE UWILA, BELONGING to Kailua Hawaiian Civic Club (now Kailua Canoe Club), broke in half and her splintered pieces washed ashore at Sandy Beach a few days later. All that remains today is the ama (outrigger float), rescued by crew captain Gary Muraka-Accounts of the Uwila's demise say that Murakami wanted to bring home part of the canoe and he dove over the side of the escort boat before any of his exhaused teammates could stop him. Murakami swam to the canoe, her "broken outrigger sticking out of the water at an angle like the wing of crippled bird. He cut loose the ama and swam back with it."

Stew Kalama, the Kailua coach, was in tears as the boat sank. It had been a frustrating bourloop better trating, hour-long battle to save a racing legend. The Uwila held the course record, then a 38-mile race, of 5 hours, 36 minutes set in 1964. Outrigger's Leilani had a happier fate—she survived to Oldtimers and first-timers race again on Sunday, two week's shy of her 50th birth-

OUTRIGGER WAS even with eventual winner Waikiki Surf when "we swamped in mid-channel," recalls Fred Hemmings, then OCC's steersman. "We couldn't right the canoe and had broken zippers (in the canvas covering) that kept letting the water in. I don't know how we did it but we cut the riggings and saved the canoe." Hemmings now a state representative, said he and his teammates were exhausted after fighting the ocean for two hours. But somehow OCC managed to get the Leilani over the transom of their escort boat Hula Kai.

"That caused thousands of dollars of damage but at least we saved the canoe," he said. 'She had to undergo extensive repairs then and has been streamlined even more since then; she's our (Outrigger's) premier racing boat.

"Looking back on it now, it's questionable whether the race should have been held. (Small craft warnings were posted). From a historical point, I'm glad it was; it was an epic experience."

Hemmings says talking about '66 is "probably a bore now but I will always remember being in the middle of that rolling ocean, with 20foot ground swells. It was massive," he said. "We were fortunate to get all the paddler back alive. It was a race and the second from page one

because of another trip to Russia in the spring so she could visit Yalta.

She and Dillingham Tug & Barge Co. finally settled on mid-September because that's the anniversary of her marriage to Harold Hustace, a lifetime member of the Outrigger Canoe Club, whose ashes she scattered beyond the reef in him swimming down there," "The tug doesn't go very fast, between five and eight twilight, a storm made the seas

ed a little. The crew was absolutely won- lights on Oahu and at Lahaina. derful, seven men, two to a I didn't have to worry about very noisy.

falling out or getting seasick. others tall and skinny. There ed that barge to the dock. A are haoles and other races. But moment of inattention and multi-racial team.

"The barge carried autos, materials, a cement mixer and a lot of other things.

honolulu bob krauss

"We drew away from the dock at about 5:30 p.m., then pulled up to the barge and attached the cable which unreels from a drum and costs $25,000.

"I watched them reel out 1,800 feet of cable. It's very "When the tug went by the dangerous work. The crew has Outrigger at sunset I waved to to place a lot of trust in each other. After they pull away she said. "He was a swimmer, from the barge, the cable sinks you know, with Duke Kahana- in the ocean with the barge about 600 feet from the tug.

"The weight of the cable and the barge stabilizes the tug. I knots. Going past Waikiki at learned a lot.

"For a while, I could see the more interesting. The tug pitch- harvest moon. Then it disappeared but it was never totally "It's a totally other world. dark because you could see "The crew had a large televiroom. They were worried about sion set. They watched Monday me at first because of my white night football on Thursday. I'd hair. After I got into my bunk, sleep a little while in my a man came in and said he clothes, then get up and go on would sleep in the top bunk so deck. Of course, the engine is "In the morning at Kahului I "It was like a family. Some of really had to admire how the them are short and muscular, captain and crew gently nudgthey all worked together like a somebody could have been crushed.

"I wrote in my notebook, Maria Hustace stands by the craft - figuratively and literally. bikes, pleasure boats, housing 'They handled the barge with She bought the trip at a benefit auction. "The bidding was the tenderness of a mother put- furious. It went up to $200 and $300, enough to fly to the ting her baby into a cradle." Mainland, but I had made up my mind to go on the barge."