

SWIMMING SPLASHES

Mariechen Wehselau, Outrigger swimmer, has been presented with a dog by one of her many admirers and the pup is being called "Buster."

The girl champion swimmer of Hawaii claims that just because the neighbors call her dog "Buster" it is no sign that such is his name. She says his name is "Teddy."

There is talk now of having three days of it at the open water meet in June.

It has been suggested that Weissmuller be given a chance to go over the mile at the harbor on Sunday, June 25, and try and break the record set by Frank Beaurepaire.

Bill Rawlins says that the I. A. C. is going to pay the entire expenses, both ways, for two Hawaiian swimmers and a trainer to take part in the I. A. C. meets next spring.

The girls' team from the Outrigger Canoe club is going to try for a world record in the 200 yards relay in the tank meet to be staged in Punahou basin early in June.

Regardless of who wins tonight at the Hui Makani meet there will be a lot of "I-told-you so" people around tomorrow.

Johnny Weissmuller has not been allowed out on the surfboard for several days past and is just waiting for Sunday to roll around so that he can go out into the big combers once more.

Nothing worries Coach Bill Bachrach. So long as he has a good meal under his belt and a fat cigar in his teeth the world can roll right by. He bought a bottle of Nujol the other day in order to regain his health, so he said.
