SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 27.—The entire personnel of the Salt Lake City baseball team, including a number of recruits, were down at the railroad station early today to welcome Jimmie Duchalsky, a pitcher from Honolulu, who will be given a trial with the Bees. The new arrival from the land of the hula and ukulele was full of smiles when he stepped off the pullman and remarked that he is already in love with the climate here. Jimmie isn't as stalky as most pitchers but according to all reports, he has all the makings of another "Bullet" Joe Bush.

The above paragraph or one like it may appear in the local newspapers when Jimmy Duchalsky, star pitcher of the Hawaiian baseball team and also of the Braves club, arrives at Salt Lake City.

Last night a farewell party was given Jimmie by his team mates and official backers of sports at the Pines. There were 56 people present, among the crowd being "Jimmie" Dole, president of the Hawaiian Pineapple company. Everybody present wished Duchalsky the best of luck and the kid laughed in tears as the party progressed.

Jimmie leaves for the coast on the Maui tomorrow morning and, upon his arrival at San Francisco, will leave immediately for Salt Lake City, where he will report to his new boss.

Aloha, Jimmie. Hawaii wishes you good luck.
