TRIO OF SURFERS REPORTED DOING TWO LONG RIDES

Kahanamokus and Eddie Claim New Record In Surf With Go From First Break

More surfing history was written on Friday afternoon at Waikiki beach when it is reported that David and Sam Kahanamoku and Eddie von Hamm performed the remarkable feat of riding a First Break wave into the sand, twice in succession.

Previous to Friday, Sam Kahanamoku has been the only one to whom such a feat been credited. On Friday three of them did it together. Eddie the Sheik has always been regarded as a good rider but his performance Friday places him in the front rank with the other real stars.

Good Surf

The surf Friday was of the long swell type which is ideal for distance riding. The boys made their catch of both waves at the First Break proper and slid towards the blowhole where they turned. They rounded the diving stand before heading for shore direct and they made their landings on the beach near the Outrigger Canoe club clock.

Saturday the surf, while still fairly high, was spoiled by the south wind. The same was true yesterday except in the late afternoon when the wind veered and the big surf came up again.
