PEDDER OBTAINS SCHOONER YACHT FOR OCEAN RACE

Macfarlane Gets Word From Prexey Of Santa Barbara Yacht Club As To Classic

A. R. Pedder, commodore of the Santa Barbara Yacht Club, has written to Commodore Clarence W. Macfarlane, father of the trans-pacific ocean yacht race, saying that he had recently bought a new schooner yacht for entry in the coming event.

The feature of the letter is a request from Commodore Pedder that the island yachting body provide for the finish of the race by having all the necessary night lights.

Commodore Macfarlane will write back asking the coast yachtsman just what he wants in the way of finishing signals. He will outline his idea of how best to signal the finish and then ask Commodore Pedder if he has any changes to suggest in the arrangements.

"We expect 12 or more boats to be entered. We hope that each boat that finishes will have something to look back upon in the way of a memento of this race, if it is only a shark's tail at the bowsprit," writes Pedder.
