dark horse in the breaststroke but he certainly produced.

The crowd gave the winning swimmer in the first race plenty of applause as he crawled out after the event.

The time of 3:07.1 was almost six seconds over the world record of 3:01.4 held by Bathe of Germany and made in 1922.

There were only two entrants in the 100 meters breaststroke for women. One was Helen Moses and Dorothy Waters was the other.

Ah Kong Pang was disqualified by the judges but the referee did not even know about it. Later he was reinstated.

The disqualified swimmer filed a protest with the referee and the matter was taken up by the swimming committee.

The 200 meters free style for men was a race all over the course. The man who won it must have covered 250 in making it.

The finish in the 400 meters was so close for second place that it looked like a dead heat between Pua Kealoha and Sam Kahanamoku but Sam got the touch.

Mariechen Wehselau took second place in the 100 meters but Lillie Bowmer was so close behind that it looked as if she might nose out the island champ.

The crowd really yelled when it was announced that Ederle has broken a world record in the 100 meters.

Pua Kealoha swam a great race in the 400 meters and though 15 yards behind at the end of 100 meters spurted up to the leadership.

The biggest surprise of the meet was furnished by the smallest swimmer, Louise Du Bois of Maui, when she won the 50 meters.

Herman von Holt did well as starter and got them all away with the gun.

Thanks to the fast work of Clerk-of-the-Course A. C. Reinecke, the meet was run off on the time schedule in fast order.

Ah Kong Pang's disqualification in the breaststroke was lifted and he got third position in the race, the referee announced before the meet was over.

The referee declared that he thought all the men in the race had swum well and that it was the most perfect breaststroke race he had seen.

Another Maui victory was rung up in the 50 meters free style for boys under 15 years when Clarence Crabbe of Maui nosed out Alfred Hess of the Outrigger club.

The meet was over in good time, the officials beating the schedule.

George Kane, favorite, came through in the 100 meters backstroke for men, winning from Keith Conniston of Schofield.

The springboard diving for men was a close competition. Only five points separated Jeff Wilcox and K. Makinney, who battled for second place.
