

Army Swimmers Sign Up For Saturday Swims At Punahou: New Performer

---

Conniston Expected to Make Good Showing in Backstroke; Olson Will Compete in Breaststroke

---

LATE in entry but very much in the running, the Army has just announced that two of Schofield's swim stars will compete in the Saturday night water carnival at Punahou tank, under the auspices of the Women's auxiliary of the Outrigger Canoe club.

Luther Hough, coaching the inland post swimmers, has two of his best men in readiness for the Saturday clash. They are E. Olson and Keith Conniston. Olson is one of the well known Olson brothers who have been putting the Army in the lime-light as to swimming lately. He will compete in the breaststroke event, thereby adding an inter-service air to that event. Olson will not only be competing against Sam Kahanamoku, Kirschbaum and other civilian swimmers, but will have an old service rival—Hammonds of the Navy—on his trail during the breaststroke event.

Conniston is what fans fondly call a "dark horse." He is considered by Hough to be one of the most sensational comers in the backstroke branch of natation and is expected to figure prominently in the handicap event for that type of swimming.

It was also announced by the meet committee yesterday that Kaeo, the Hawaiian youth who has just signed up for a vaudeville tour as a high diver, has agreed to give an exhibition on Saturday night as an added attraction.

David Lloyd Conkling, president of the A.A.U. here, is busy lining up a group of Hawaiian singers who will function during the intermissions. These will give an added Hawaiian touch to a program of Hawaiian swimming.

The visitors now in Honolulu can figure on seeing a Hawaiian meet as she is met with, on Saturday night.