

LOTS OF GOOD EATS AT CANOE CLUB FAIR

dues amounting to $1.00 a month for senior members and 50 cents per month for junior members, and when you also consider that the initiation fee for senior members is only $10 a year and there is no initiation fee for junior members, you can readily understand the club is not rolling in wealth.

On top of its increased operating expenses, and insufficient finances from low due and initiation fees, the rent for the club's property has been increased from $100 a year to $150 a month, which is some jump.

The lagoon, which was the site of the old stream, which ran through the grounds to the sea, is now ready to be filled. This would make room for at least two extra volleyball courts, and a much needed playground for the children, but—it will cost between $3000 and $4000 to do this, and in the words of Kipling, "That's another story."

Where is the 4000 pohakus to come from? The filling of this lagoon would increase the club's activities over one hundred per cent, and allow many of the members who do not play volleyball now on account of lack of room, an upper-
