

Surfers Put First Scores For The Year On Healanis

Rosemond's Crew Slips Two Goals Over On Rattray's Talent In Fine Battle

The Outrigger soccer team yesterday scored the first goals that have been shot into a net defended by the Healanis this season. Outrigger score twice and Healanis scored once.

The game was a remarkably hot affair with the last few minutes of play being bitterly contested in the effort of the Healanis to tie the score. It is safe to say, that considering the mode of play of the men with the striped jerseys in those last few moments Outrigger was heartily relieved when the final whistle blew.

The first half of the game ended in a tie, with each team having one score to its credit. Jack Rosemond, captain of the Outriggers, scored the final goal of the day. Kinneer, the little wizard of the Healanis smashed one into Bob Chillingworth that ricocheted into the net for a point for Healanis.

In the latter part of the first half Esmond Parker of the Outriggers took one on the toe that reinjured the bad ankle received in the intercollegiate games this year and was forced to retire. In the second half Parker, pluckily asked to be put back in the game. Seven minutes after he took his position he made a fine advance, by means of dribbles only to lose the ball near the end of the field. A few minutes later, despite his bad ankle, he accepted a pass from Elisha Andrews and put it cleverly into the net for the winning point.

From that time until the final whistle the Healanis put up a brilliant battle and proved themselves to be a team that plays hardest when losing. Throughout the contest was staged for the most part in the territory of the winners.

vice Club card in his go with Moran the disappointment will be quite severe to the local fans who have been thinking for some time that the little Italian battler is deserving of a better place on the local cards than the preliminaries. In ten starts he has won nine times by the knockout route. Not a bad record for any lad.

Nuccio's go with Bloom should be a fine feature of the Kamehameha entertainment.
