Waikiki Beach Press loses its staff photographer to the U.S. Armed Services. LINDSAY MATTOX swears his allegiance to Commander-in-Chief RICHARD NIXON at Ft. DeRussy ceremonies Monday, April 14. Poppa (that's me) said aloha to Lindsay with cocktails and Press Club cohorts Saturday at the Outrigger Canoe Club.

Insurance Exec Mountcastle Dies

MR. MOUNTCASTLE

William Herbert "Bill" Mountcastle, one of Hawaii's leading insurance men, died Saturday at St. Francis Hospital. He was 64.

Mr. Mountcastle is survived by his wife, Georgina, and three daughters, Mrs. Ivanelle Choy and Iris and Debra Ann Mountcastle. Funeral services are pending at Nuuanu Memorial Park Mortuary.

Mr. Mountcastle, who lived at 133 Omao St., Kailua, was born July 19, 1904, on Maui. He attended Maui High School, then graduated from the University of Hawaii with a bachelor of science degree. He was an outstanding basketball and track star at the University during the 1920s.

Mr. Mountcastle worked for a time as a roadmaster for Kahului Railroad Co. on Maui and sold insurance as a sideline.

In 1933 he became a full-time representative for the insurance department of American Factors (now Amfac) on Maui. In 1941 he was elected president of the Hawaiian Life Underwriters Association, of which he also was a director for 10 years and a national committeeman for six years.

In 1947 Mr. Mountcastle was elected to life membership in the Million Dollar Round Table of the National Association of Life Underwriters, after selling $1 million worth of life insurance a year for three consecutive years. At that time there were only two other insurance men in Hawaii who qualified for life membership.

That same year Mr. Mountcastle also was fourth in the nation in sales of paid life insurance policies for the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., which he represented as a longtime Amfac employee.

Mr. Mountcastle was elected president of the University of Hawaii Alumni Association in 1948, a post he held for three years.

In recent years he was district manager for General American Life Insurance Co. and also represented Bishop Insurance Agency.

Mr. Mountcastle served on the Territorial and State Board of Pardons and Pardon from 1946 to 1960, was a charter member of the Outrigger Canoe Club and was active in the Honolulu Lions and Elks Clubs.

William Mountcastle, insurance agent, dies

William H. Mountcastle, 64, of 133 Omao St., Kailua, a well known insurance agent, died Saturday in St. Francis Hospital.

Funeral services will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. tomorrow at Nuuanu Memorial Park Mortuary. Burial will be at Nuuanu Memorial Park Cemetery.

After a short time with the Kahului Railroad Co. on Maui, Mr. Mountcastle went into the insurance business.

HE REPRESENTED General American Life Insurance Co. and Bishop Insurance Co. of Honolulu, specializing as an insurance analyst and estate planner.

He was a lifetime member of the Million Dollar Roundtable, a high honor for achieving million-dollar sales of insurance.

Early in his career, he once sold more insurance for the Confederation Life Insurance Co. of Canada than anyone else in the world.

He also had represented John Hancock Co. for many years.

AN OUTSTANDING athlete at the University of Hawaii, Mr. Mountcastle excelled in basketball and track.

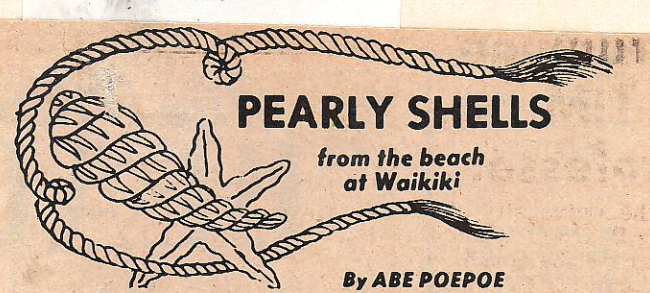

He was also responsible for getting scholarships for many athletes.

He was president of the University of Hawaii Alumni Association from 1949-51 and a member of the Outrigger Club, Honolulu Lions Club and Elks Club.

In 1941, he was president of the Hawaii Chapter, National Association of Life Underwriters.

DURING World War II, he received a special award from the Secretary of Treasury for promoting sales of War Bonds.

He is survived by his widow, Georgina and three daughters, Evanelle Choy of Newport Beach, Calif. and Iris and Debra Mountcastle, both of Kailua.

I have a son 20 years old. I've watched him grow from clumsy adolescence to gracious manhood with a great deal of pride, although I admit to having been short on praise and long on criticism.

I have been aware of his anguish over current trends that have torn him between his peers' radicalism and his father's establishment. I have seen his suspicion of the establishment and his empathy with the antagonistic forces, and we have talked about the differences, sometimes very loudly.

But we found agreement on two points: that Vietnam is amounting to such a messy entanglement that we should withdraw completely or escalate toward victory, and that the draft system is bad because of the severe inequities that put more emphasis on the pursuit of an academic degree than professional experience in the field.

It was with some trepidation that I watched him come of Selective Service age two years ago while he was taking college introductory courses and satisfying his journalistic bent in a part time job, exposing himself simultaneously to the demonstrating rebels and the remonstrating status quo. There seemed to be altogether too much interest in flights to Canada and induction protestors and rabble-rousing and the credibility gap. Then came the threats to seize and destroy the local induction center.

I didn't know my son well enough, though. I didn't know that he had learned well the lesson of turning over the tinsel to find the principle.

My son went into the Army last week, perhaps not entirely willingly but with an understanding of his obligation to community and country. Never have I felt more pride in him, never have I had more love for him than that day of our first separation.

ANNA TRACY, daughter of the JOHN TRACYS (he's the local head of American President Lines Passenger Service Division) lost a baby tooth while weekend at Makaha Inn & Country Club. Does the hotel have a Good Fairy, the toothless one asked. Food and beverage manager WILHELM SCHIRMER felt that if his home-land, Switzerland, where kings once roamed, could have a Good Fairy that left $1 per tooth, certainly Makaha, once inhabited by alii, should have one too. Anna returned to her room to find one dollar and a note, "Thanks a lot for the tooth. It was a beauty."

You do a double take when you see husky former pro football star CHARLIE ANE, now in charge of operation of Paradise Park, wearing a Mickey Mouse watch. It's not an ordinary one, he assures us. It was given to him by former college classmate, DICK NUNIS, operations manager at, yep, Disneyland. Another Mickey Mouse timepiece watcher: Former Honolulu Mayor NEAL S. BLAISDELL.

Executive Club 100 headed by MIKE HICKEY of the Outrigger Hotel is a man's organization, but occasionally it opens its activities to wives and girl friends. This year it's "An Evening of Elegance for the Ladies," Monday, April 28 at Hickey's haunt. Sunset cocktails and music kick off the evening, followed by a gourmet dinner "with The Continental Touch," winding up with a show of stars.

Matson's chic liner, SS LURLINE, pulls out of Honolulu Harbor this weekend for its Super Cruise of Kauai, Maui and the Big Island, returning to Honolulu May 4. We'll be on board.

The rescue squad had already launched its boat; the cops were on the beach; an anxious wife was searching the sea for her husband reported missing. A heart-wrenching scene at the Outrigger Canoe Club back-dropped by what was turning out to be a spectacular sunset. Then from the street entrance loped GRAY WOOLAWAY, object of the concern and search. I can hear his wife now.

Mansfield-McGinnis Engagement Revealed

Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell Mansfield announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathie Dawn, to John Edward McGinnis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo H. McGinnis of Tujunga, Calif.

Miss Mansfield graduated from Punahou School and attended the University of Hawaii. She is a member of the Outrigger Canoe Club.

Her fiancé, a graduate of Bellarmine-Jefferson High School in Burbank, Calif., is attending San Fernando Valley State College and is a member of Sigma Pi Sigma, national physics honor society.

The wedding will take place Jan. 17 in Glendale, Calif.

Party Patter Date Book

Waikiki was literally invaded last weekend. While officers and enlisted men of the Submarine Force took over the Royal Hawaiian Hotel for a pair of birthday balls Friday and Saturday nights. The Pacific Fleet Service Force moved into the Hilton Hawaiian Village for precisely the same reason—to celebrate 27 years of service to the fleet. In the meantime there was more partying at Hickam Air Force Base Friday when members of the Hickam Officers' Wives' Club put on their annual luau and lined up Sterling Mossman and the Barefoot Bar gang to headline their show.

Between big parties, there have been smaller ones, too. Visitors have kept Rear Adm. (USN, Ret.), and Mrs. Gordon Chung-Hoon in a party-planning mood. At a recent luncheon they honored designer Lily Dache and her husband, Jean Despres of New York and Paris. Despres recently retired as president of Coty, Inc., and stopped in Hawaii with his wife on their way around the world.

The Chung-Hoons also gave an aloha dinner party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Baum on Mrs. Baum's birthday and ended up with two more occasions to toast—the arrival of Capt. and Mrs. Kurt Loewe from Newport Beach, Calif., and the return of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Freeth from a two-month tour on the Mainland.

Mrs. Loewe, a long-time friend of Jean Chung-Hoon's, shared honors with Jean's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Perry White, at a luncheon Mrs. Frances Hanna gave Saturday at the Outrigger Canoe Club. Captain and Mrs. Loewe departed Sunday on a tour of the Neighbor Islands.
