

'hoppers with a heart

For one reason or another parties continue to whirl in and around town. Members of Grasshoppers, Inc., have come up with a good reason for a benefit fashion show and dinner next Monday night at the Outrigger Canoe Club.

Proceeds will go to the Hawaii Lay Diabetic Society to enable them to send diabetic youngsters to a special camp in Mokuleia this summer.

The party is limited to members, most of whom are traveling when they're not supporting some worthy cause right here at home. With the next tour right around the corner, (two plane loads head for Europe in the fall) the fashion scene will definitely focus on travel wear. Fashions will be provided by the Hibiscus Boutique, a specialty shop in Waikiki run by Grasshopper members Mrs. Jack Chaffee and Mary Munds.

In fact the entire show has been taken over by club members, whose roster includes some of Honolulu's best-dressed women to be pressed into service as models. Taking to the ramp will be the benefit chairman Mrs. Richard A. Cooke Jr., who will lead off several mother-daughter teams with her daughter Marcia. They'll be followed by Mrs. James Stopford and Madelyn, Mrs. Mary Delpech and Terry and Mrs. John Morrett and Lisa.

Still others keeping in shape for modeling are Mrs. George Tuggle, Mrs. Cy Gillette, Mrs. Jo Fuller, Mrs. Robert Campbell, Mrs. Mark Reid Yates, Mrs. Gordon Dickie and Mrs. Jack Andersen.

Cocktails will begin at 6 p.m., dinner at 7:30 and the show at 8. Mrs. John Tatom is coordinating the show and Mrs. Mary Delpech is handling invitations. Both say they hope to hear from more members this week willing to support such a worthwhile cause.

golden day

Mrs. and Mrs. H. Alfred Hansen invited members of their family to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary recently at a dinner party at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

They were joined by their daughter Mrs. Corbin Johnson whose husband, Lt. Col. (USMC) Johnson just happened to be here on leave from Vietnam for the happy occasion. Also there were the Johnsons' daughters, Sandra and Barbara, Capt. (USN, Ret.) and Mrs. C. J. MacKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Carr and Barbara Barrus. Mrs. MacKenzie and Mrs. Carr are Mrs. Hansen's nieces and Barbara Barrus is Mr. Hansen's niece.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansen mark golden anniversary

NANCY HARLOCKER'S date book

The celebrants really made a day of it by starting off with a luncheon with friends at Michel's then later calling on Mr. and Mrs. Claude Chatterton for champagne cocktails at Arcadia. Mr. Chatterton was best man at their wedding.

The Hansens were both born on Maui where they've lived most of their lives. Hansen has been long associated with the sugar industry and since his retirement has been managing the Tropic Seas Apartments in Waikiki.

nice catch

Edward John (Tim) and Pan Seibert really made a hit with guests at Barney and Mary Smith's party Saturday night. The day before the two couples had been on a successful deep-sea fishing trip that provided platters of sashimi for the party to honor the Seiberts who are visiting here from Sarasota, Fla. Not only did Pan catch a good-size aku, but the Smiths' son Doug landed a big one, too.

Pan was born in Hawaii, but this is her first trip back since she was an infant. It's also the first time back for Tim who had known Barney when their fathers were stationed together at Pearl Harbor many years ago. The two couples went to the University of California together, too, and Barney was best man in the Seiberts' wedding.

Barney and Mary invited a few Island friends in for a curry supper to meet their guests who are accompanied by their daughter Pandora Lee, 11. Tim is an architect and impressed local architect Sid Snyder with plans he's doing for a home for Dan Rowan in Florida. The Snyders in the meantime are feeling quite satisfied themselves these days. Their own home on Waialae Iki ridge has been in the planning stages for nearly five years, and a beaming Diana Snyder says it's finally under construction and should be completed by October.

The Snyders had planned to go on the Grasshopper tour to Europe this fall but had to cancel out. However, Polly and Keith Steiner were bubbling with their own plans for an extension tour of England, via the Grasshopper flight to Portugal and got a few pointers from their hosts who had been there for several months last year.

The Seiberts have been staying at the Reef Towers Hotel and leave tomorrow for home via Los Angeles.

tams for two

The handsome tam o'shanter Dr. Shunzo Sakamaki is sporting on the University of Hawaii campus these days is a treasured gift from none other than the famed San Francisco State College president, Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, who is rarely seen without his own tam. What makes the gift even more treasured is the fact that Dr. Sakamaki said he tried to find a tam in Honolulu for Richard S. Takasaki when he became acting president of the University of Hawaii and couldn't find one. "McInerney's finally ordered one from the Mainland for me to give to Takasaki," he explained.

Royal Hawaiian Hotel Photo

Former Islanders Mrs. A. Edward Fitkin, and daughters Sharon, left, Wendy, and Penny.

Dr. and Mrs. Hayakawa were in Honolulu over the weekend after a two-week holiday on Maui and were honored at a small, informal reception at the Willows Saturday night given by Dr. and Mrs. Sakamaki. Hayakawa and Sakamaki have been friends for many years and most people think the two look like twins. But Dr. Hayakawa said he didn't bring the tam to his friend to confuse matters. "I think he can use it for the second session of summer school at the University of Hawaii," he said. The session started yesterday and Dr. Sakamaki is dean of both summer terms.

While all three tam owners came to the party, not one wore his tam. "It's too hot now," Dr. Hayakawa explained.

Dr. Hayakawa was recently appointed president of the riot-ridden San Francisco college after successfully serving as acting president last year. But as wife of a college administrator Mrs. Hayakawa said she has had little to do with college life. "We've never been on any one campus long enough to get involved," she said. "And there isn't any faculty housing at SF State." The Hayakawas live across the bay on the Berkeley side where Mrs. Hayakawa says life has been quiet except for an occasional bomb threat. "Then the police charge in and tell me to get going to the nearest motel while they search the house. We've really been quite lucky," she added nonchalantly. "Other members of the college staff have actually had bombs thrown into their homes."

Dr. and Mrs. Hayakawa have three children. Their eldest son was a Harvard drop-out, Mrs. Hayakawa said, but after he married has settled down and is a student at Reed College in Oregon. Their daughter attends the University of California at Santa Barbara and another son is at home.

Looking ahead, Mrs. Hayakawa, a tall winsome blonde with a pixie hair cut, said she expects greater demands on her life now that her husband is officially president. "But up until now, I've just been the wife of an embattled acting president," she added smiling.

Among the Sakamakis' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bitner who had welcomed their two young daughters home that afternoon from the Mainland. "I've had my vacation right at home," Mrs. Bitner said. Their daughters, however, have been at the Cheley Camp in Estes Park, Colo., which Mrs. Bitner said is a great change for Island youngsters. "It's very Western," she said, adding that it is the same camp where The Rev. and Mrs. Abraham Akaka met as counselors, and that the directors, Mr. and Mrs. John Cheley, are annual visitors here in the fall.

Mrs. Masayuki Tokioka said that she's been busy these days with her family. Their son, Makoto and his wife, returned recently from San Francisco to live and have been frantically house hunting, staying with the Tokiokas until they find a home. In the meantime Mrs. Tokioka is preparing to take off with the Grasshopper tour for Spain in September.

hen party

The Walter S. McManus home in Manoa is overrun with girls these days now that their daughter, Mrs. A. Edward Fitkin and her three daughters are here. Mrs. Fitkin, the former Sally McManus, arrived from their home in Oklahoma City last weekend with daughters, Sharon, 17, Wendy, 15, and Penelope, 9. Unfortunately Ed was unable to make the trip at the last minute, but Sally hopes he'll join the family for at least one long weekend during their three-week visit. Looking as pretty as ever, and tanned, Sally said, "No, I haven't been to Bermuda. It's so hot in Oklahoma that all you have to do is walk outside and you've got an instant sunburn."

While the Fitkin girls sun on the beach, Sally will visit friends she and Ed knew after they were married here in 1952. They later moved to Rumson, N.J., and after their last visit in Honolulu in 1964 moved to Oklahoma. Ed is the nephew of another former Islander, Ralph Fitkin.